Confidence Vote

Socreds Isolated In Test

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Progressive Conservative government won its first crucial vote in the Commons Tuesday night when a Social Credit motion of non-confidence was defeated 233 to 30.

Only the Social Credit group supported the motion, which would have overthrown the government if it had carried. It was worded in such a way, however, that neither the Liberals nor New Democrats could have backed it.

In a rare display of interest, every MP was in his seat for the voting. The 115 Conservatives got support from 100 Liberals and 18 NDP members in opposing the motion.

MAKES APPEAL

Earlier Tuesday in the throne speech debate, Prime Minister Diefenbaker made an appeal for defeat of a Liberal non-confidence motion due to be voted on Thursday night.

Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, indicated such support will be supplied by his party. He spoke while moving his party's version of non-confidence, which was greeted by laughter from Conservatives, Liberals and the NDP.

THE MOTION

"We respectfully affirm to Your Excellency that Your Excellency's advisers, having failed to pursue economic and financial policies based on Social Credit principles designed to balance the economy and relieve the burden of public debt and public debt charges, thus assuring Canadians a standard of life compatible with this nation's capacity to produce, do not possess the confidence of this House."

NO NATIONAL CRISIS

Mr. Thompson said his group is determined to follow "the role of statesmanship" rather than bring on a "national crisis."

Mr. Diefenbaker earlier asserted that the economy was on the "up and up" during the election campaign and is still "on the upsurge."

SLANGING MATCH

In a three-hour and 15-minute speech punctuated by a slanging match with Mr. Pearson, he denied the Liberal chieftain's charge that the government deceitfully concealed the foreign exchange crisis from the Canadian public during the campaign leading to the June 18 election.

DEFENDS STAND

The government's action of June 24 was "not abnormal." It had done "legally in 1962 what they (the Liberals) did illegally in 1947."

Mr. Diefenbaker said intensification of the drain on Canada's foreign exchange fund started last June 15.

Podres Vs. Marichal

SAN FRANCISCO — The entire National League baseball pennant fight, which started 163 games ago last April, has dwindled to a sudden-death contest in Candlestick Park here this afternoon. Winner gets to play New York Yankees in the World Series that starts Thursday.

Los Angeles Dodgers tied their playoff series with San Francisco Giants in an 8-7 thriller yesterday that lasted a record four hours, 18 minutes. (See Page 8.)

Dodger southpaw Johnny Podres (15-13) has been picked to oppose northpaw Juan Marichal (18-11) today.

Schirra Ready

Europe May Watch U.S. Space Attempt

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. entered the final phases of preparation for a six-orbit journey around the earth Tuesday, and there was a possibility that much of Europe might witness the launching on television.

Improving weather conditions in the Atlantic and Pacific areas where the Mercury capsule might come down increased the chances that the spacecraft might be fired into orbit some time after 5 a.m. PDT today.

* * *

If the launching occurs between 5:45 and 6:15 a.m., the Telstar communications satellite will be within range so that live coverage of the liftoff could be sent almost instantaneously to TV viewers in 17 countries of the Eurovision network in Europe.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said conferences are also in progress in Paris leading to possible hookup with the nine Soviet bloc countries of Europe's Intervision network.

* * *

The plan calls for an eight-minute Telstar transmission to Europe. If the launch comes during that period, NASA hopes to be able to show Europe the last two to four minutes of pre-launch activity and the four-minute climb until the launching rocket is out of sight.

But NASA emphasized that there would be no juggling of launch times to fit into the Telstar schedule.

* * *

The space agency said the astronaut, his backup pilot, Leroy Gordon Cooper, his spacecraft and his Atlas rocket all appear to be in good condition for flight, and have completed the first part of a split countdown without a hitch.

The major concern has been the approach of tropical storm Daisy toward the areas 275 miles south of Bermuda where Schirra would land if his flight ended after two orbits. However, the storm was moving so slowly that it may not reach the area in time to give trouble.

ASTRONAUT SCHIRRA

Russia Asked To Avoid High Blasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States formally notified the Soviet Union Tuesday of the impending rocket flight of astronaut Walter M. Schirra and indicated hope that the Russians will avoid high-altitude nuclear explosions which might hamper the operation.

The U.S. action was similar to one the Soviet government took in mid-August when two Russian spacemen were orbited and Moscow notified Washington with a suggestion that the U.S. be careful about where it fired its nuclear test shots while the men were up.

Know This Week

Smallpox Shots For All?

By TERRY HAMMOND

Vancouver Island and lower mainland residents will know before the end of the week whether or not they will have to be vaccinated against smallpox.

Deputy health minister Dr. J. A. Taylor said last night a telephone call is expected "within a very few days" from Ottawa, which will advise whether or not a 25-year-old Thailand student at the University of British Columbia has the disease.

ON SAME PLANE

Already vaccinated in the Victoria area are five people who were in contact with a man who travelled to B.C. on the same plane with the student early last month.

Health officials yesterday opened a smallpox immunization clinic on the UBC campus following a roundup of students who had been in contact with student Kaneung Watanachai.

OTTAWA DIAGNOSE

If federal virologists at Ottawa diagnose the student as a smallpox victim from blood samples flown to the east, Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island residents should be vaccinated, said Dr. Taylor.

Dr. Taylor said the Island would have to be included because of large-scale travel between here and Vancouver and more particularly because of the number of UBC students who come over on weekends.

ONLY MILD CASE

Although the student might only have a mild case of smallpox, because of having been immunized before leaving Thailand, he could still pass it on to others who have not been vaccinated or whose immunization has worn off.

An emergency call for more smallpox vaccine was issued by the B.C. health department yesterday, and Connaught Laboratories in Toronto is expected to come up with enough to immunize 50,000 to 80,000 people.

WERE NOT SURE

Health authorities were not sure where they would get enough additional vaccine to immunize 500,000 people if the need arises, but Dr. Taylor thought manufacturers could pool stocks and probably meet the requirement.

Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said the possible smallpox contact who came here left last Sunday bound for London. U.K. health authorities have been alerted to intercept him.

NAME WITHHELD

Dr. Whitbread said he couldn't divulge the man's name and felt it was not necessary to do so in order to protect other possible contacts.

The man stayed in North Saanich, and Dr. Whitbread believes the five people immunized represent all he was in contact with.

He and all other passengers of the CPA plane which brought the Thailand student to Victoria were already under surveillance.

First Test Of Blood Negative

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first of three tests on a blood sample of a University of British Columbia student showed no sign of smallpox.

But Dr. J. L. Gayton, Vancouver medical health officer, said Tuesday night two more tests are needed before it can be said definitely that Kaneung Waranachai is not suffering from the disease.

5,000 Get Shots

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia medical authorities vaccinated 4,000 students and faculty and staff members in the space of four hours Tuesday and appeared to have the smallpox scare at the university well under control.

NEARLY 5,000

Tuesday's mass immunization, carried out on a production-line basis by the university's free health service, brought to nearly 5,000 the number vaccinated since a suspected smallpox case was discovered Monday. The university's total enrolment is 13,500.

IN ISOLATION

Kaneung Watanachai, 25, a Colombo Plan student from Bangkok, is in isolation at Vancouver General Hospital with an unidentified skin infection. Final results of tests on his condition are expected to be known this week.

Students lined up five deep in the corridors of the university's Westbrook building Tuesday to receive their vaccinations.

FAIRLY CERTAIN

The university said it is now fairly certain everyone who had been in contact with Watanachai has been vaccinated. However, the university health service was prepared to continue the program today for any who knew they had been contacts.

FAST ACTION

A university spokesman said the fact the university's free health service for its students is the largest and most extensive in the Commonwealth made it possible to take fast action after the suspected case was discovered.

Camping in Hope Park

Sons Register 100 Children As School Bursts at Seams

HOPE (CP) — The number of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors camped in a municipal park here Tuesday swelled to 1,200, and sect spokesmen said the total was expected to go as high as 1,600. (See Pages 5, 10.)

About 100 children from the camp were registered in Coquihalla Elementary School here.

School board chairman George Brown said facilities already were overtaxed and the school would have to go on shifts.

Mrs. Fanny Storgoff, a spokesman for the Doukhobors, said they are determined to continue to Agassiz.

90-Day Holiday Won by Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — After June, 1964, about 200 of the 400 workers at American Can Co. and Continental Can Co. plants here will be entitled to three months vacation every five years.

The United Steelworkers of America said Tuesday the clause is a major breakthrough. It applies only to employees who have been with the companies for 15 years or more.

It is contained in a contract negotiated on a North American basis.

British Trains Halted

LONDON (Reuters) — Rail traffic across Britain ground to a halt shortly after midnight Tuesday night as the country's railroad workers went out on a 24-hour strike.

CAMP BY DESKS

London businessmen and office workers camped beside their desks overnight after the railroad union leaders decided to go ahead with the strike following the collapse of last-chance peace talks called to avert the strike.

Offices, canteens and board rooms all became bedrooms as essential staff brought out mattresses and blankets.

HOTELS JAMMED

Hotels were jammed as the strike hit London's 1,250,000 commuters.

Many plan to switch to cars, but roads leading into the capital from the suburbs are barely adequate to handle the normal commuter travel.

Revenge Behind Slaying?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sidney Kovish, 28, longshoreman and sometime cowboy, was fatally wounded Tuesday night when shot in the chest at close range by a .303-calibre rifle held by an apparently intoxicated assailant.

Police, who later arrested a suspect in the shooting, had scoured the downtown area looking for a well-dressed man who witnesses said fired after saying to Kovish: "I told you I'd get you."

GRAIN DOCK JOB

Kovish, a bachelor who took two months off each summer to ride in rodeos in Canada and the U.S., was walking to his car after finishing work at a grain dock when the man stepped out of a late-model luxury car and went over to Kovish.

He fired two shots. The second shattered Kovish's hand when he tried to protect himself.

'Reds First in Nuclear Race'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. Edward Teller, the nuclear physicist, said Tuesday recent U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific have "not been quite satisfactory" and added:

"It is my guess, and it is only a guess, that the Russians are ahead of us in the nuclear race today."

Teller based his "guess" upon Russia's past record of progress in nuclear development and upon results of the recent U.S. tests.

The reason, he said, was that during the U.S. moratorium on testing, "we were not allowed to make thorough preparations for the eventuality that we would have to resume testing."

As a result, progress has been "less than it could have been."

However, he said the tests have shown that the weight of nuclear payloads may be reduced. The tests have afforded "additional assurance" that if the U.S. was attacked, it would have the ability to strike back, Teller said.

He said the tests were further valuable in experimenting with use of nuclear weapons as an aerial defence.

U.S. Ends Test Break

HONOLULU (AP) — The U.S. resumed nuclear testing in the Pacific Tuesday after a two-month recess.

The device packed power equivalent to between 20,000 and 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Political Prisoner —Walker

SPRINGFIELD, Mo. (UPI)—Former army general Edwin Walker, charging he is being held as a "political prisoner," was ordered Tuesday to undergo psychiatric examination at the U.S. hospital for federal prisoners.

Attorneys for Walker, arrested on Monday for his part in the University of Mississippi integration crisis, have told the former general to give prison officials and doctors only name, rank and serial number.

Time for Purge

Barnett Granted 10-Day Reprieve

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett Tuesday won a 10-day reprieve from federal punishment for his vain opposition to Negro James H. Meredith's enrolment at the University of Mississippi. The justice department suggested the delay. (See Page 3.)

Instead of sending Barnett to prison or fining him on the spot, a federal appeals court gave him a form of probation until Oct. 12—apparently a test of his willingness to accept fully Meredith's integration into previously all-white student ranks.

Twice last week, Barnett personally blocked Meredith's admission to the University. But in the face of federal troop intervention, the governor made

JAMES MEREDITH

By REIMAN MORIN

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—James H. Meredith, sitting on an iron cot in a bare dormitory room, said Tuesday he considers his enrolment in the University of Mississippi to be "more for America than it is for me."

Meredith is the first Negro knowingly admitted as a student in the university's 114-year history.

* * *

In an interview, he showed no visible signs of nervousness or apprehension after the explosive riot that swept the university campus after his arrival Sunday night.

Meredith said quietly:

"I hope now the situation gets back to normal as soon as possible so that the students can continue their studies normally. That's what I want more than anything else now."

* * *

This was his second day to attend classes. He was escorted by federal Marshal James McShane to an hour's class in American colonial history. His second class was in political science.

He took a seat toward the back of the room. Two other male students sat a little farther back. None of the seats directly adjoining his was occupied.

A crowd, estimated by McShane at about 40, had gathered in front of the building when Meredith emerged.

* * *

However, he said in the interview that in the classes a number of students have greeted him, saying "hello" or "good morning."

He added:

"I haven't seen any students in class who appeared to be unfriendly."

After his first day in classes Monday, McShane said there had been no reaction from white classmates.

* * *

But a reliable campus source said that a co-ed burst into tears and sprinted from the room when Meredith entered.

"I can't stand it any more. This is enough and I am leaving," she shouted as she fled.

Meredith indicated emphatically Tuesday that he intends to remain in the university until he has his degree.

Labor Party Parley

Lull Over Today

BRIGHTON, England (CP)—Political gale warnings are going up all over this south coast resort as the Labor party's annual conference braces itself for today's crucial Common Market debate.

The first two days of the five-day conference have produced few conflicts. Veteran observers, remembering Labor's internal dissension of past years, have commented on how easily the party's executive committee has been able to win support for its official policies.

But as one correspondent put it: "This is just a lull before the Common Market storm."

PRIVATE SESSION

Labor Leader Hugh Gaitskell is expected to win strong support for his policy that Britain should not join the Market on the terms now emerging at Brussels.

At a private session late Tuesday an executive motion to amend the constitution to expel members "guilty by association" with proscribed organizations—such as the Communist party—was defeated.

The motion, proposed by George Brown, deputy Labor leader, apparently arose out of recent attempts to expel philosopher Bertrand Russell and other nuclear disarmament figures from the party because they attended the Moscow peace conference earlier this year.

Try Schnapps For Courage

BERLIN (UPI)—A young East German coal miner yesterday escaped by diving 98 feet from a bridge into a border canal and swimming more than 200 yards to West Berlin. The refugee, called only Peter M, said he drank a bottle of schnapps to work up his courage.

Disarmament Now Dream With Hope

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—Disarmament remains a dream but a "glimmer of hope" is provided by the possibility of an agreement to end nuclear tests, the 17th United Nations General Assembly was told Tuesday.

Foreign Minister Mahmoud Fawzi of the United Arab Republic told the 108-member body: "Such an agreement, besides its own obvious great importance in terms of human, economic and political values, would serve as a stepping stone to wider successes in the quest for general and complete disarmament."

no intrusion Monday when Meredith finally was registered.

The governor's legal aides argued that this non-intervention at the climax amounted to compliance with the court's integration order; that therefore Barnett had purged himself of contempt and any punishment attached to his earlier defiance.

The same argument was advanced on behalf of Lieutenant-Governor Paul B. Johnson, who stood in for Barnett on one occasion last week to bar Meredith from enrolling. However, Johnson was made liable only to a fine, rather than imprisonment in the contempt citation the court levelled against him.

The justice department asked the court to hold any punishment in abeyance to allow Barnett and Johnson more time to show compliance with the integration order.

PURGE DEADLINE

Neither Barnett nor Johnson came to New Orleans for the hearing. Tuesday was to have been the deadline for the pair to purge themselves of contempt.

Barnett, in Jackson, Miss., was reported prepared to accept imprisonment had the court so decreed. City and state police encircled the governor's mansion there, alert against any disorders that might arise should federal authorities try to seize him. Hundreds of persons milled outside.

When word came of the 10-day reprieve Barnett declined any comment.

Meanwhile, some 12,000 heavily armed troops enforced the court's orders on the university campus after two days of rioting cost two lives but failed to prevent Meredith's enrolment. The display of federal might was unparalleled in the south since the Civil War.

In Oxford, Miss., seat of the university some 300 miles to the north, a military police sergeant underscored the grim determination behind the government's massive deployment of troops. The unidentified soldier, a bayoneted rifle crooked in his arm, told a reporter:

"We aren't supposed to say this. But we have authority to fire these things if we are attacked. And you can believe they're loaded."

Your Good Health

Diet Major Factor During Pregnancy

By JOSEPH MOLNER, MD

Dear Dr. Molner: What about counting calories during pregnancy? I'm in my seventh month. Should a carefully controlled diet accomplish as much now as normally? Do some foods "burn off" more readily than others? Or is a calorie a calorie?

For several weeks I have been on a diet, but so far it hasn't seemed to help much. My diet is sensible — high protein but few of those delectable desserts I love.—Mrs. B. R.

Yes, a calorie is a calorie. But there are important things women should know about diet in pregnancy. And about diet before it, too.

Some women have moderate nutritional deficiencies that don't make themselves known and perhaps don't amount to much. But when pregnancy begins, the additional demands of the baby turn a small deficiency into a large one. If a woman starts pregnancy with such deficiencies, she can't expect to make them all up. So—pay reasonable attention to diet all the time.

SOME POINT

There's also some point to keeping your weight correct before pregnancy. A baby's weight at birth is frequently proportional to the mother's at the time of conception.

Having a very heavy baby is nothing to boast about, and it doesn't mean the baby will be extra healthy. Average weight is best. Overly large babies are more dangerous to deliver. Having large babies (along with being overweight) is a frequent sign that diabetes may develop later in the mother.

BEST FOR BOTH

In pregnancy, don't put on too much weight. About 18 to 20 pounds is maximum for best health of both mother and baby.

Get plenty of protein, plenty of calcium (from milk, as the best source) and Vitamin C in citrus fruits and juices.

More tomorrow.

Dear Dr. Molner: I am in my early 20s. What might be the effect of having one ovary removed? Would it cause emotional upset, fatigue or trouble during menopause?—Mrs. D. J.

No. If an ovary is defective or diseased and the other normal, there is no ill effect at all from having the faulty one removed.

Logging Problem

Ontario Tests

'Bathtub' Tests B.C. Dam

By TERRY HAMMOND

Ontario Hydro engineers playing boats in a giant Toronto "bathtub" are trying to solve one of the major problems connected with design of B.C.'s controversial High Arrow Dam.

Their problem:

How best to move millions of cubic feet of logs annually from the Celgar Corp.'s tree farm licence above the dam on the Columbia to its huge pulp and lumber mills below the dam.

Using a meticulously constructed model of the High Arrow they are trying to determine whether the logs can be moved past the dam most economically by means of a lock, by truck or by crane.

Forests Minister Williston said yesterday the use of a lock appears on the surface to be the most desirable, but nobody yet knows whether or not it will work. Its cost has been estimated at about $7,000,000.

It will have to lower bundles of logs a height of about 78 feet and the bundles would have to endure severe turbulence and buffeting without breaking up.

Must Be Perfect

Playing with model log booms through all ranges of spillway flow and other variable conditions the engineers are trying to devise a system which will work.

Mr. Williston said it doesn't just have to work most of the time, it's got to be perfect.

He said the government prefers the lock system in principle because Celgar has said such an installation would allow it to continue to have full responsibility for its logs.

If the Hydro Authority uses a truck portage or a crane it will have to bear responsibility for the logs in transit.

Second Problem

Construction of a lock might also solve the problem of small boat traffic on the Columbia. Mr. Williston said. First plans for High Arrow called for construction of a modest marine railway to keep river traffic flowing. With a lock, this could be eliminated.

The relatively small High Arrow Dam is considered the darling of the trio of B.C. Columbia dams because it has the highest cost benefit factor, a figure which relates its price to its returns in the form of downstream power entitlement.

Dam Opposed

It must be completed under terms of the International Columbia River Treaty within five years of treaty ratification by Canada.

High Arrow is 3,500 feet long along the crest and 160 feet from toe to top. It is largely an earth-fill structure with reinforced concrete around the spillways and other areas of high water velocity.

High Arrow drew the wrath of many residents of the area who argued that its benefits were not worth the loss of thousands of acres of farmland and a number of homes which will be below flood level.

Socreds Lose In Test

Between June 1 and 14 the fund used up $128,000,000 in gold and U.S. dollars. Between June 15 and 22 the loss was $270,000,000. Between June 25 and 29 it was $115,000,000.

The prime minister said Mr. Pearson had been given this information by Louis Rasminsky, governor of the Bank of Canada. Mr. Pearson's office said the meeting occurred after the election.

PERSONAL ATTACKS

Mr. Diefenbaker accused Mr. Pearson of making personal attacks on him.

"I am not going to get down in the gutter with the leader of the opposition," he said.

"That is where you have been for years," snapped Mr. Pearson.

NO RESPONSIBILITY

Mr. Diefenbaker said there was "no sense of responsibility" on the part of the Liberals. A program outlined by Mr. Pearson Monday would cost "well on to $1,000,000,000" annually. The Liberal health program would cost $400,000,000 a year and the plan to help municipalities $500,000,000 annually.

HAD PRECEDENTS

Mr. Diefenbaker said depletion of Canada's exchange reserves had precedents in this country and in others.

When the foreign exchange crisis had arisen in 1947, Liberal Prime Minister Mackenzie King had argued that it had come about as a result of a prosperous economy.

'WE SHALL RULE'

This answered those who maintained that Canada could have exchange difficulties only in times of economic stringency, Mr. Diefenbaker said.

The Liberal attitude was: "We shall rule, or if we do not succeed we care not for the consequences."

NDP ACCUSES

H. W. Herridge, House leader of the New Democratic Party, accused the government of a "contemptible reversal of policy" in declaring itself in favor of hydro power exports in the Throne Speech.

He termed it "desertion of principle and capitulation to the premier of British Columbia."

Detention Home Nearer

Calling of tenders for construction of the new juvenile detention home was approved yesterday by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee.

Tenders are returnable Nov. 10 and municipal councils will be asked to approve cost sharing by the end of the same month so bulk of the construction can be finished by May 31, thus qualifying for winter works grants.

Mayor R. B. Wilson earlier received word from Attorney-General Bonner ruling out possibility of provincial grant toward the estimated $100,000 cost of the home.

JOHN XXIII:
THE PEASANT WHO BECAME A POPE

When Cardinal Roncalli was elected Pope, many Vatican officials sensed a change in the air. And they were right!

Unlike his predecessors, Pope John has traveled freely throughout Rome. Struck up chatty conversations with palace workmen. And even visited a Roman jail—to say mass for the prisoners.

In this week's Post, you'll read about the Pope's rise from a humble village to the throne of St. Peter. Learn why he chose to reign under the name of John—instead of Pius. How his cheerful disregard of red tape and protocol has raised the eyebrows of Italian aristocrats. And how his delightful sense of humor has endeared him to Catholics and non-Catholics alike.

PHILIPS

This new 1963 Philips TV will still be working by the time he is (Monitron Control is the reason why)

His first job is a long way off. Yet you can be sure that when the day arrives and he's off to work, your Philips MONITRON Control TV set will be working too. What's the reason behind this dependable service? A new TV discovery.

Philips electronic experts decided to do something about a common household fault that often results in premature failure of the picture tube and other expensive TV parts. This common fault is power surge. To lick this problem, our experts developed the MONITRON, a small but incredibly sensitive electronic device which prevents these power surges reaching and damaging the expensive parts of your Philips set. Because of this added protection Philips has increased its picture tube warranty to 2 full years. Your nearby Philips dealer will be glad to show you Philips MONITRON Control TV . . . and you'll be glad to meet him. We picked him for his courtesy, his integrity, his ability, and his willingness to provide responsible "Follow-Through" service. See your Philips dealer today.

Safe Game Preferred

HOUSTON (UPI) — Athletic director Harry Fouke of the University of Houston said Monday the school would prefer to play Saturday's football game with the University of Mississippi at Houston rather than Oxford, Miss.

"I doubt if Mississippi officials even know what to expect, he said.

Riot Victim Honored By Students

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—The University of Mississippi's daily newspaper, the Mississippian, has established a scholorship in honor of French reporter Paul Guihard, killed in campus rioting Sunday.

The scholarship will be Known as the Paul Guihard Memorial Scholarship, with all money going into the fund to be collected from "Ole Miss students."

UP to $1,000 will be granted to each journalism student selected to receive money from the scholarship fund.

The newspaper has also started a second fund for the benefit of any French student studying in the U.S. This scholarship also will be in Guihard's honor, funds to be collected from off-campus sources.

'Ole Miss Never Same Again'

By TOM PENDERGAST

OXFORD, Miss. (AP) — The pretty girl with the southern softness to her voice painted soldiers lounging in the area where riots killed two persons on the University of Mississippi campus.

★ ★ ★

"I'll always see troops and tear gas whenever I look at this beautiful campus," she said. "Ole Miss will never be the same."

Kathy Jones of Vicksburg, Miss., was one of an entire art class assigned to paint the scene of Sunday's riots. She reflected some of the sombre mood of this place, a peaceful college town a few days ago.

Brilliant sunshine and crisp fall weather failed to clear away the gloom that settled down on the town and on the campus.

Students, faculty and people of the town still spoke aloud of their dislike for the federal government's move in sending troops and marshals into Oxford.

But classes went on. And traffic moved once again unhampered in the town square—held under military control and blocked Monday during a flareup of violence.

"I'm going to put that in too," Kathy said, gesturing toward the mashed concrete remains of a park bench.

★ ★ ★

Troops had policed the area of rubble and only small pieces of glass glinting in the sun remained on the stryets. The truck-loads of bricks, rocks, boards and cans that had littered the area Monday had been hauled away.

Occasionally, students who walked quietly to class would stoop and pick up a broken bottle, tossing it in a trash receptacle.

They were silent.

★ ★ ★

The Lyceum, administration centre of the campus, was not filled with marshals to the extent it had been. Outside, even the soldiers seemed relaxed. But security measures were as stringent as ever.

De Gaulle Battles Opponents

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle reacted swiftly Tuesday night to counter fierce political opposition to his plans for changing the presidential electoral system.

Shortly after the National Assembly accused him of violating the constitution, de Gaulle switched the time of a country-wide television address from 7 p.m. to noon Thursday.

CENSURE MOTION

The speech will precede assembly debate on a censure motion submitted Tuesday night against de Gaulle over the change.

In a referendum Oct. 28, the electorate will vote on de Gaulle's plan to choose presidents by universal direct suffrage instead of through an electoral college of some 80,000 national and local public officials.

Camera Sees Needle In Haystack

CAPE CANAVERAL (AP) —A missile and satellite tracking television-telescope far more precise than the best radar has been developed experimentally by a group of U.S. Air Force scientists here.

The military potential of such a camera for tracking, mapping and battlefield surveillance is little short of fantastic.

It already has been used to take photographs of orbiting Soviet and U.S. satellites at altitudes of 150 miles with such precision they can be distinguished by shape.

It is so sensitive it can photograph an object no larger than a bowling ball at an altitude of 100 miles.

A-Test Suit Under Test

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. government has asked dismissal of a suit seeking a federal injunction against atmospheric nuclear weapons tests.

The plaintiffs, 185 persons from 22 countries including Nobel Prize-winning chemist Dr. Linus Pauling, have until today to file a reply to the brief by Defence Secretary McNamara and members of the Atomic Energy Commission.

Sore Legacy

AMONG THE enlightened areas of the world, those who appreciate the grave racial problems of America's deep south, there will be sympathy for the Kennedy administration in the riotous upsurge in Mississippi.

The civil war that ravaged the U.S. 100 years ago is not yet ended. That much is plain from the deep-seated feelings that still prevail in the southern states, and which this week threatened the unity of the Union itself. Segregation is still the core that tears at the heart of the "Confederate" country.

As Congress noted with sombre restraint the image created by the events at Oxford, Miss., is one to damage America and affect its influence on the world stage which it treads. There is the picture of an army being necessary to enter one lone Negro into a university, the challenge of a state governor to the laws of the Union, and rising cries of secession.

Pfesident Kennedy has met the situation in the only way possible by asserting the supremacy of the Union while tempering his actions in efforts to reduce the tensions that exist. The situation is still ticklish and much will be made of it by Soviet propaganda and by those ignoring the widespread desegregation gradually coming more and more into play throughout the United States. It is in the south that the canker of racial animosity lives as a sore, a legacy of the war that freed the slaves, and it is patience and education alone that will in time remove the stigma of racial discrimination, there as elsewhere.

A Dull Thud

GREATER VICTORIA'S latest building permit figures and most recent unemployment statistics provide ample proof that this community does not subscribe in any way to Liberal leader Pearson's gloomy postulations that Canada's economy is on the rocks.

On the contrary, the Victoria metropolitan area is looking forward to one of its best and most productive years in recent history.

And there are good reasons for its optimism. Already it has seen a record tourist season set with resultant benefits not only to local retail merchants and service industries but to the resident public at large; its shipbuilding and forestry industries are busy; its population is growing; its unemployment figures are lower than they have been for several years, and it is well on its way to establishing an all-time record for business and dwelling construction.

It is because of these reasons that Mr. Pearson's ominous words fall with such a dull thud by the time they reach the outskirts of Victoria. Nor is there cause to believe that they will fall on more fertile ground elsewhere in Canada at the present time.

It was perhaps forgiveable that Mr. Pearson should assume the pessimistic role of doom-spreader during the election campaign. But it is hardly his duty as leader of the Opposition to continue to cry havoc today—particularly as the havoc he previously cried has failed to materialize.

Mr. Pearson should know that Canada has entered into an era of development which calls for its people to show pride and confidence in themselves and their country—not despair and defeatism. He should realize that because the Canadian people have recognized this, Canada is now well on the road to recovery from the 1960-61 recession.

He would do well to follow their example.

Sixty Years On

THIS WEEK two more skeins were added to the Churchillian saga. He became the only survivor of the ancient, almost antediluvian by modern standards, battle of Omdurman; and coincidentally celebrated his diamond jubilee as a member of the British Parliament.

These two distinctions illustrate the gamut of a career without parallel. They recall the young gallant who rode with his Lancers to victory, and the aged statesman who still belongs to the realm in which his name became immortal. In between they reflect the changing history of the world of his lifetime, from cavalry charges to orbiting space vehicles.

Sir Winston is now removed from the active roles which marked his great career but his name is such as to command attention whenever it is mentioned. He enjoys as perhaps no other of his ilk the affectionate sentiments of countless peoples.

It is sentiment that makes one hope he may remain as an MP until the last bugle call sounds as it did for the young officer at Omdurman. Sixty years on, as they would say at his old school, and 60 years of immense service in the place where his heart and mind found opportunity to put his genius at the disposal of his fellow men.

No Need to Worry

A HUMOROUS story went around a year or two ago about the passengers in an aircraft finding they were on the first completely automatic, electronically controlled flight, without an aircrew. It comes back to mind with the announcement that Trans World Airlines has instituted navigation by machine on the trans-Atlantic crossing, dispensing with the human navigator.

Just after takeoff, the fanciful tale went, the address system in the plane informed the passengers that they had the distinction of being on the first crewless flight; that their safety was assured by the most marvellous of electronic systems, and that consequently "nothing can possibly go wrong . . . go wrong . . . go wrong. . ."

A sad truth of course is that human beings also have their occasional deficiencies, and that there are many jobs that machines can do faster and with more consistent accuracy than men. Properly maintained, they do not grow tired, nor do they start thinking of the new car they want nor of Jimmy's poor marks in school.

Electronic navigation thus can be considered as safe as and probably safer than human navigation, especially when pilots capable of finding their way with other aids, and of applying man's intelligence, are superintending it and when no doubt an error would be quickly detected.

It's only the completely crewless plane that we look forward to with a shudder.

Thinking Aloud

". . . of shoes, and ships, and sealing wax . . ."

By TOM TAYLOR

NOWADAYS the political scene is enlivened or bedevilled, take your choice, by being split into two main camps, right and left.

Physically in Canada we have four camps and in terms of parties some countries have half-a-dozen. Some as you know have only one.

But while in some things political groups veer together, temporarily, in modern parlance they are deemed to be of the right and left. Sometimes they play it down the middle but basically their philosophy is either leftist or rightish.

Or so it is decreed.

A leftwinger would certainly regard all others as of a rightist persuasion, and vice versa.

This notwithstanding that in Saskatchewan a leftist government sits on the right of the Speaker and its rightish opposition on his left.

The semantics of the business are interesting, and they favor the rights. The lefts seem to have been cast on the wrong side of the bar sinister.

Ignoring the ethical content of right as compared to wrong, which could suggest that there's not much wrong in belonging to the right, there is the example of the human body. The right is that side on which the muscular action is usually more skilled than the other side; the left side there, by interference, is the weaker side.

Except that I've just remembered that the heart, the strongest part of each one of us, is situated in a leftish position.

A southpaw would of course dispute any assumption that physically the right had priority, especially if his attainments eclipsed the common or garden righthander, and a leftist of other degree might affirm that his superiority was mental and not muscular. But the majority rule is not easily dismissed—there are more people attuned to the right than to the left.

Putting it bluntly, as they did before right and left were co-opted for political purposes, the left side of anything was—at one time anyway—considered to be unlucky.

Hence it was the Roman foreteller of events would climb a hill and divide the heavens in two, from top to bottom. If the birds appeared on the left the augury was poor; if on the right the future was favorable.

Plutarch said this was because the west, or left side of the augur, was towards the setting or departing sun. Some election nights have been a departing sun for leftish political groups, but I daresay they might rebut ancient practice by facing south instead of north.

A sad election night would thus have a brighter hue since the setting sun would shine leftwards.

There is more to semantics than birds, however. We shall leave out the obsolete definition of left—a mean or contemptible creature—as being both unparliamentary and unfair. It does not belong in our context.

★ ★ ★

There is however a left-handed compliment, which is an insincere thing; a left-handed (morganatic) marriage, in which the groom gives his left hand to the bride and not his right, thus according her second-class status; and there is Dickens.

He tells us in Pickwick Papers that when a gentleman pointed with his thumb over the left shoulder he was indulging in sarcasm.

As against these leftish demerits there are the phrases "in one's right mind" "right-foot foremost," "right-hand man," "right as a trivet," etc., all of which give bonus points to the rightists. Which might settle the matter except that both left-wing and right-wing groups claim to have right-hand men, and all political parties seem to have right and left hands and the wonder is sometimes if ever the twain do meet.

In conclusion let that prefix be cited to which presumably all politicians aspire—Right Honorable. This may devolve upon a leftish prime minister equally with a rightish one; yet there has never been a Left Honorable.

"Do we still reject flat feet? When you're weightless in space would that matter?"

Lessons Ignored for Dieppe

A Suicidal Plan by Amateurs

By Major-Gen. F. V. WORTHINGTON

A review of The Shame and the Glory: Dieppe by Terence Robertson; McClelland & Stewart; $6.50.

TOO much has been made by critics of the Dieppe Raid about the greenness and battle inexperience of the Canadian troops. Not even the seasoned and blooded forces of Napoleon or Wellington could have achieved success in a similiar operation, but neither Napoleon or Wellington would have contemplated for a moment such a fool-hardy and suicidal plan.

Courage and enthusiasm such as the Canadians showed can accomplish much in the face of great odds, but they rarely achieve the impossible.

The real amateurs were the planners, amateurs who disregarded the fundamental principles of war and ignored the lessons of military history that the regular soldier is supposed to study to merit promotion.

The Shame and the Glory will open many old wounds and spark controversies dormant over these many years, for Terence Robertson has lifted a veil of secrecy for all to read and learn the facts—facts and truths that our historians have glossed over for reasons known only to themselves.

The author begins his tale with a brief rundown of the types of men who made up Canada's fighting forces. He continues, stepping warily through a maze of fact and fancy, to sort out what he can from documentary evidence and interviews with all ranks among the survivors of both friend and foe. He succeeds in putting life into a sordid story.

It is clear that there were "too many responsible commanders involved" in the plan—too many cooks spoiling the broth, except that the broth was an unpalatable brew from its inception with difficulties light-heartedly brushed aside and a complete disregard for the old army maxim—plan pessimistically; execute optimistically.

Robertson speaks of the rigid timetable and operation orders (consisting of 121 typewritten pages) which included the order to shackle any prisoners. This came direct from Combined Operations Headquarters despite Canadian protests, and the result was to inflict great misery on the captured Canadians.

But the orders had little to do with the outcome, for a frontal attack from the sea with inadequate fire support against overwhelming enemy fire nullified any hope of success. "Surprise as the solitary strand of a frail and slender lifeline" did not exist.

Any commander unlucky enough to be chosen for this forlorn hope was in the impossible position of being damned if he did and damned if he didn't. Roberts, the poor devil selected, was handed a conglomerate plan devised by a variety of people and when it was apparent that it had failed disastrously he endeavored, as a good commander should, to join his men on the beaches and share their fate. Here the navy stepped in and refused to put him ashore.

Through no fault of his own Major-General "Ham" Roberts, credited by many with being the arch-villain, was himself one of the victims of the ill-conceived operation.

★ ★ ★

There is no doubt that the tragic drama of Dieppe taught Combined Operations many many lessons, but must it be forever necessary to suffer defeat in order to learn?

Can the military learn only from disastrous mistakes?

And is the study of military history of no value?

There was sufficient similarity between Dieppe and carnage at Cape Helles, Gallipoli, in 1915 to warn the wary and profit from the lesson learned there.

I would like to have seen more detailed maps in The Shame and the Glory, but Robertson has written a fine book, presenting his material clearly and fairly, making no attempt to incriminate or to whitewash. His heroes are the regimental officers and men who fought so bravely against impossible odds, but he resists giving vent to his personal opinions. He leaves the reader to form his own.

The book is disturbing and heart-breaking, and there are those who will say "Why bring it up again, what purpose can it serve?"

To those I answer: "None—if Canadians are content with half-truths and whitewash in our history and if we are unwilling to face unpleasant facts in order to learn from experience." But the author, in his preface, puts it better.

"A nation searching for a soul cannot ignore the past, that great reservoir from which it must draw whatever national strength of character the future will demand of it. If the past is denied, or the truth distorted, then the reservoir is poisoned and the nation moves on, each generation inheriting the impurity of weakness and adding to it."

Maudlin Art

By GREGORY CLARK

LIKE everyone else who wears dentures, I have had my little mishaps in which certain words don't come out quite the way you intended; or just when you are trying to look your most dignified, your pipe slides sideways in your teeth. Whistling, in the old artistic style learned as a boy, is no longer possible.

Seldom do the mishaps add anything to a situation. But in an art gallery the other day, a hairy lady of undoubted intellectual quality contributed a new word to the area of art criticism. She was showing three other people, a man and two women, a group of paintings that occupied a whole wall of the gallery. They were examples of the new, non-representational style of painting which interests me only in that it slightly infuriates me. Curious arrangements of paint, they strike me as the work of lazy, wilful men and women. But I continue to go to art galleries in an effort to learn, to be corrected. I passed near the woman doing the explaining.

"Maudlin art," she said, and I halted.

"Maudlin art," she began again, after visibly readjusting her denture with her right thumb.

"Dear me," she fluttered, "what I mean to say, modern art . . ."

But I had got my word. I hustled out of earshot.

Today In History

By THE CANADIAN PRESS

A nine-power conference in London agreed to rearmament of West Germany eight years ago today—in 1954. The rearmament proposal, made by Britain, called for termination of occupation of West Germany into NATO and signing of a revised Brussels alliance treaty.

1936 — Pamela Barton, British titleholder, won the U.S. women's golf title.

1946 — Thirty-nine persons were killed when an American Overseas Airlines plane crashed in Newfoundland.

American Versus British Schools

A Mutual Misunderstanding

— By GODFREY HODGSON from Washington

THE United States Congress recently published what is, in effect, an essay on British education which looks at that system with remarkable thoroughness and insight and finds it on the whole good.

The "essay" is actually the testimony of Admiral Hyman G. Rickover to the House of Representatives committee on appropriations, and it has stirred up some lively debate here. The admiral, as the father of the American nuclear submarine program, has a certain licence to say things that would be regarded as un-American by anyone else, and he has used it to study first the Russian and the Swiss educational systems and draw from them lessons which he believes passionately America will ignore at her peril.

In his testimony he argues with a wealth of technical evidence, particularly from examination papers, that British education is better than American. By this, he means something dangerously un-American; he means that children learn more, and more useful things, at school in Britain than in America.

The admiral throws many a damaging broadside into those whom he regards as the villains of the educational scene in America, the educational theorists and the educational administration. He remarks with some acerbity on a "project" recently completed by 28 national experts who concluded at great length that children could not after all be taught to read in 12 years of school: "We are plagued with the chronic shortage of teachers, but we have an overabundance of researchers."

Comparing standards with Britain, he finds that British children are usually one to two years ahead by the age of 11. (This is broadly confirmed by British experts who have studied American schools.) And he adds, "Just in case it is objected that the health of England's children will be ruined by all that studying, let me mention comparative studies on physical fitness. English—and other European—children consistently outdid our own pampered children."

Turning to the grammar schools, the admiral suggests that by the time British children take the general certificate of education at "O" level, when they are 15½, they are doing work comparable with the American College Board tests, taken at 18.

The British secondary modern school, says the admiral, is often dismissed by American educators as fit only for "hewers of wood and drawers of water." But, he argues, with a mass of curriculum and examination detail to bolster his point, partly because the secondary modern school in Britain teaches more "solids" and less "life-adjustment," and partly because one actually spends less of the day and of the year in school in America than in England, "I seriously doubt whether American children in the ability range IQ 80-110 get as good a basic education as similar children in fully developed secondary modern schools."

The admiral's conclusions are not entirely novel; indeed one might almost venture to say that they are accepted but not thought to be important, partly because it is genuinely hard for Americans to think that they might be wrong, and partly because of a difference in values. The Washington Post's London correspondent put the instinctive American reaction in a nutshell in the first paragraph of a hostile (and not entirely accurate) piece about Britain's "eleven-plus" test:

"From an academic standpoint, Admiral Hyman G. Rickover made some sound points . . . From the standpoint of broader human values, however, he was talking through his conning tower." The correspondent goes on to say that while Britain offers "superb" education for the "very few," for the great majority British schools offer more limited opportunity than American ones. The point is perhaps moot; but what is interesting is that the American orthodoxy corresponds with the views of the Left in Britain: that most Americans, like Labor educationists in Britain, normally put first priority on social egalitarianism and life-adjustment among the virtues of a school system.

But liberal — that is left-wing — opinion in America tends to agree with the admiral and with British orthodoxy that this set of values is all wrong. American "liberals" now usually favor more emphasis on the brighter child, more "streaming," more academic content in the curriculum, and less fuss about whether Johnny is socially integrated.

It is a curious reversal, and one that the admiral himself spots through his periscope with the fierce harumph that "it is rather odd, when you come to think of it, that the only Western country where the whole educational establishment is committed to this tenet (that is, to the comprehensive school), is the world's least Socialist country—the United States."

★ ★ ★

The mutual misunderstanding will no doubt continue. Americans will no doubt continue to believe, as Time magazine put it in one of its more casual whoppers recently, that "under Britain's weed-killing series of national examinations, only one in thousands from a (working-class) background ever receives more than an elementary education!" And Britons will continue to think, as a 14-year-old secondary modernite from Manchester, whom the admiral quotes put it, that "Americans tend to make there (sic) children little idols. Which in my opinion is wrong."

In Kashmir

Trying The Lion

By PATRICK O'DONOVAN

THE Indian trial of the ex-prime minister of Kashmir for what amounts to treason, matters less than the trial of Charles I of England (who was condemned to death in 1649) or the half-mad Dutchman whom the Nazis accused of burning the Reichstag in 1933. But it matters in the same sort of way — even though it churns in a little town set at the very edge of the vast plains of North India, just where the mountains that mark this end of the world begin.

The trial has attracted little attention in India; more, in fact, in London than in Delhi. And yet before the trial was even thought of, the accused and their followers were treated for political purposes in the manner that is now held against the British by the most fervent nationalists of India.

The chief accused is Sheikh Abdullah, an old friend and ally of Mr. Nehru in the long struggle for independence. He has been called the "Lion of Kashmir," and as prime minister of the State of Jammu and Kashmir, he had undoubtedly the support of the vast majority of his people. He was first arrested in 1953 and put into preventive detention for five years. Then, after a brief release, charges were preferred against him. And that, in any sort of state anywhere, needs explanation.

The sheikh is accused with others of having, while prime minister, conspired to wage war against, and to overawe, the government of Jammu and Kashmir and of India. The bitter heart of it all is that he is accused by implication of having tried to take the state away into Pakistan. It is impossible to predict the verdict but it will be a fair one.

The trial itself remains wonderfully reassuring. The court is, in tradition and procedure, a British court, but a British court that has relaxed to suit the ways of a more easy-going, more turbulent, more voluble, less coldly disciplined civilization. Two British lawyers, it is true, appear in the long line of gowned figures for the defence. But they are strange among their Indian colleagues who treat them with that special courtesy given to elders of a trade.

There are times when most of the court seems to be speaking at once. Hands are flicked and heads wagged in the Indian manner. Passionate asides are murmured to no one in particular. There are eloquent sighs and slumping back into chairs. High voices sometimes almost sing and chirrup their pleas. And yet justice can be seen to be done.

The Kashmir judge remains in control, though it is not the awful, the near absolute, control of his British equivalent. He is relentless in his attention; he checks and rechecks the precise meaning of each minor outbreak, and, like everyone else, never slips over into passion or unreason. Sometimes the chief accused will stand unasked in the dock to help out with a point, and he does so unreproved. They slip easily from English into Urdu.

Among the visitors in court is a strange figure: a woman whose mind is unhinged. It is said that she lost many of her people during the troubles that tore Kashmir apart between India and Pakistan. And now her husband has left her. She looks gauntly old in tattered cotton trousers and tunic with a veil over her head, and three heavy bangles on her wrist.

She has fastened what is left of her life on to the sheikh. From time to time she will gently interrupt the court with a murmur of loyalty and he himself sometimes quiets her with an admonitory finger.

The trial moves slowly. One morning, for example, the court heard the evidence of a young police officer on how he obtained allegedly incriminating documents. That took all morning with five defence lawyers cross-examining him in turn, as well as the prosecution. And he was only the first of what is alleged to be a list of 200 witnesses for the prosecution. He was wet with sweat when it was over but nothing very special seemed to have been proved.

Outside the court the women go on beating their washing on stones at the edge of an unsavory canal. The town is littered over the low hills, with the gold spires of temples among the slums and the ruins of old walls and castles. It is not India at its poorest or most bitter. There is the inevitable multitude in the narrow streets. There are the inevitable privileged cows and persecuted dogs and beggars that can hardly be looked at. But it is fiercely alive and beginning to change, and it, too, takes little notice of the trial in the brand new compound beside the canal.

City Motel Owner In Courtroom Tilt

A Victoria motel owner repeatedly clashed with Magistrate A. J. Byers and police witnesses in city police court yesterday when he defended himself on a charge of soliciting business on a roadway.

Police told the court Peter George Hartnell, 907 Royal Terrace, owner of a downtown motel, stood in a driveway on Wharf Street at Government about 2:10 p.m. Aug. 30, handing pamphlets to persons in tourist cars.

PART OF ROAD?

City prosecutor Angus Smith contended the driveway leading to the Causeway Esso Service Station came within the legal description of a roadway.

Mr. Hartnell contended the area was properly considered part of the sidewalk.

Magistrate Byers adjourned the case until Friday for decision.

Mr. Hartnell clashed with Const. Kenneth Horsman and Const. Einar Hemstad, Jack Lewis Cook, operator of the service station, and Mr. Byers.

Hartnell contended he had been "badgered" over the past seven years while passing out advertising pamphlets in the area near the Black Ball Ferry dock.

One clash came after Const. Horsman had answered a question from Hartnell.

"Mr. Hartnell, will you please conduct yourself seemly and allow the witness to answer questions," Mr. Byers said sharply.

"PREPOSTEROUS"

"I don't hear too well. Will you repeat that answer?" Hartnell asked the witness.

"It does not need to be repeated. It was clearly given and clearly recorded," Mr. Byers replied.

"Preposterous," Hartnell said.

TESTIMONY DENIED

When Const. Hemstad told Hartnell he had cautioned Hartnell about handing out leaflets in the area, Hartnell burst out: "That is an absolute lie!"

Hartnell attempted to cross-examine Mr. Cook on whether or not the service station was a paying business but Mr. Byers ruled the question irrelevant.

"Your eminence . . . your honor, may I explain to you the reason why I feel it is relevant?" Hartnell asked.

ALREADY RULED

"I have already held it is irrelevant," Mr. Byers replied.

Defence witness D. R. Smith, 459 Head, said he has given out pamphlets in the same area and had never been cautioned by police.

"There are others I know of who have been passing out pamphlets who have not been approached or reprimanded," he said.

A three-year sentence was imposed on John Norman Smith, no fixed address. He had admitted breaking into the premises of Auto Electric Service (Victoria) Ltd., 1100 Yates, Sept. 4. The sentence was made concurrent with sentences imposed this week in Assize Court.

Eric W. Still, 545 Johnson, who used an electric iron to smash in the windshield and windows on one side of a parked car was fined $75 for wilful damage. Still said he was estranged from his wife and the car belonged to a friend of hers.

Daniel Joseph Lorenz, HMCS Naden, admitted a charge of supplying liquor to a minor and was fined $50. Brian Luston, 1257 Haultain, was fined $20 for being a minor in possession of liquor and Douglas Dickson Allan, HMCS Naden, was fined $20 for the same offence.

Jail Term Increased

VANCOUVER (CP)—Walter Brunelle, 29, pleaded guilty Tuesday to cashing a forged cheque and had six months added to two years he is serving for a similar offence in the Victoria area.

He admitted to obtaining some groceries and the balance of a worthless cheque in cash at a food market.

Police Seek City Boy

City police are looking for a missing boy, absent from his Victoria home since Sept. 26.

Dale Shepherd, 12, of 1060 Burdett, weighs 122 pounds, is five feet four inches tall has brown hair and was last seen wearing a blue plaid shirt, black shoes and a dark brown jacket. He was riding an old-model bicycle.

Two Men Freed Of Blast Charge

NELSON (CP)—Two Glade men charged with blasting a power pole near Glade last February were acquitted by Judge James Harvey of Prince Rupert Tuesday.

Friday the Crown entered a stay of procedings against a third Glade man, W. W. Kinakin, when Judge Harvey ruled his statement given to RCMP was inadmissible as evidence.

Acquitted were Nick Bill Saprikin and J. J. Voykin.

Judge Harvey said the Crown had not proved beyond a reasonable doubt the accused had committed the act with which they were charged. He said the confessions lacked sufficient detail.

The accused testified they made the confession because of a Fredomite prophecy that emigration for the sect lay through the jails.

HOPE (CP) — The decision not to enforce the controversial Kent Doukhobor bylaw was made by the RCMP and did not come from Victoria, the force has announced.

The bylaw was passed earlier this year by Kent municipality barring Sons of Freedom marchers from its precincts. The Doukhobor sect is camped at a municipal park here on the last leg of a 400-mile march from the Kootenay Valley to Mountain Prison at Agassiz.

Dark Suit, Bright Car Figure in Assize Trial

A dark suit and a black and yellow car figured in the case of Keith Starling, 807 Arguello, on trial in Assize Court yesterday on a charge of forging and cashing a $143.34 cheque at Oakcrest Food Market May 5.

Defence counsel David Hummel produced witnesses to prove the "accused has no suit such as one described as being seen at Oakcrest Market, does not have a car such as seen at Oakcrest Market and could not possibly have been there."

One witness, Mrs. Starling, testified she had never seen her husband drive a black-and-yellow car, nor had she seen such a car.

"We have been married nine years," she said, "and I never saw him in a dark suit since he was married."

The case continues today.

Youth Hurt In Fall From Truck

A young man who fell from the back of a commercial vehicle on Heywood Avenue early yesterday was admitted to St. Joseph's Hospital with head injuries.

Condition of Clarence Book, 20, of 3237 Cedar Hill Road, was reported as "satisfactory" last night.

He fell from the back of a truck driven by his brother, Reginald Book of the same address, when it wheeled around a sharp corner.

Freed Robber Seeks Press

TORONTO (UPI)—Onetime notorious bank robber Edwin Alonzo Boyd plans a Madison Avenue touch—a press conference.

Boyd, 48, who has not been seen since he was discharged Monday from Kingston Penitentiary, telephoned his wife Tuesday and she quoted him as saying he wanted to hold a press conference because "the press has been so good to me."

WAITED FOR WORD

Mrs. Doreen Boyd, a Toronto factory worker, had waited for word from her husband since he walked out of prison after serving 10 years of a life sentence.

She said that when he telephoned, she did not recognize his voice until he said: "This is Eddie. Hello darling." She said her husband will join her in her small North Toronto apartment.

Amalgamationists do not give much thought to some of their arguments. The latest proposal that the police headquarters be located at the new Saanich Hall proves the point.

The populations of Victoria and Saanich are approximately the same yet Victoria needs 100 men to police seven square miles while Saanich police protect 25 square miles with 30 men.

Imagine the 100 Victoria police reporting to the Saanich hall and then trudging back to their posts in the city. Imagine the parking meter and traffic violators driving out to Saanich to pay their fines.

Considering that the Saanich hall has only four cells for males it is obvious that a new city police station will have to be built.

The city police get higher salaries. Under amalgamation will the police union agree that all salaries will drop to the Saanich rates? Will the new police commission decide that the city has been over-policed and that, under amalgamation, 130 men are adequate or will there be an immediate demand for a huge increase in the force?

If Saanich residents wish to have increased taxation with no increase in services, then a vote for amalgamation will do it.

Study Diplomacy

Before it is too late, and the colored people will be forced to intervene in the interest of the white race, it could be requested of the United Nations that the Kennedy regime form a study group on diplomacy—the backbone of politics.

Left to themselves—as is now being proved — the colored races are quick to learn, and perfectly capable of seeing through the charade of paternalism now being imposed on them by the shadowed governmental machinery which is endeavoring to propel both the economic and political interests of the United States of America.

It is the same force which is trying—or coaxing—the British government to commit political suicide, through a Roman treaty; the Commonwealth then—as a whole—will enter the political suction pipe into the maw of a premeditated world government; then therein stalks the "joker" and the bondage of all "free" people.

City Carpenters Rolling in Work

By ED CONGROVE

Victoria carpenters haven't had it so good for almost a decade.

Almost the entire membership of Local 1598, United Brotherhood of Carpenters and joiners are working—and indications are that the current construction program will carry this rosy picture well into the new year for all building trades.

"We have some members unemployed—older men, who are hard to place," said a union official.

Most of the local's 640 members have been placed in jobs through the hiring hall, but a number have found their own work or have been sent to jobs by the National Employment Service.

The press is partly responsible for the failure of the average Canadian to recognize labor's contribution to the progress and growth of this country, B.C. Federation of Labor representative W. G. "Bill" Gauld told the Religion-Labor Council of Victoria at its first meeting of the fall season.

STRIKE POLICY

Summarizing the history of the labor movement in this country, Mr. Gauld explained the strict policy of the Canadian Labor Congress in expelling unions that fell under the control of Communists or were found guilty of "raiding."

Next meeting of the group, which was founded early in 1961, will hear a proposal to set up a public conference to discuss the group's aims and program.

The Religion-Labor Council is composed of members representing the churches, business, labor and education.

Next meeting of the council will be held Oct. 26.

Rosy Picture

Education committee recommendations for a weekend institute for shop stewards and union officials will be discussed at tonight's Victoria Labor Council meeting.

The institutes—sponsored by the council's education committee—are designed to give union officials a refresher course on union business procedure, the application of labor laws and similar subjects.

Mail-Early Time Here

The post office has warned Canadians sending letters and parcels overseas to mail early for Christmas.

Last "safe" dates are Nov. 20 for parcels and Nov. 24 for letters going by regular mail from B.C. to Britain, and Nov. 6 and 24 to Europe. Air mail dates to Britain are Dec. 10 for parcels and Dec. 13 for letters; to Europe Dec. 8 and 10.

Garbage Disposal Not in Best Taste

Some Victorians have unusual methods of disposing of their household garbage.

City public works committee was told yesterday of these unorthodox methods:

● Carrying paper sacks or boxes of garbage in the bus and on occasions leaving the package in the bus.

● Disposing of garbage in litter bins located on downtown streets and in places like Beacon Hill Park and Pioneer Square.

City parks administrator W. H. Warren said residents of nearby apartments are "dumping household garbage in Pioneer Square, including empty liquor bottles they don't want their neighbors to see."

The disclosure followed reading of a letter from Downtown Businessmen's Association asking the city to provide more litter receptacles and give better weekend street cleaning service.

The committee ordered a full report from the engineer's department covering possibility of flushing down streets with water during summer, acquiring modern garbage trucks, increasing the number of litter boxes and enforcing the anti-litter by-law.

Servants Seek Salary Thaw

VANCOUVER (CP) — The 32,500-member Civil Service Association of Canada demanded Tuesday that the federal government rescind immediately its freeze on salary increases to 50,000 civil servants.

It coupled this demand, in a resolution endorsed unanimously at its biennial convention here, with another for an immediate pledge from the government that it will bring in legislation at the present session of Parliament to establish negotiation and arbitration procedures for dealing with employer-employee disputes.

Text of the resolution was sent by telegram immediately to Prime Minister Diefenbaker, Opposition leader Pearson, Social Credit leader Robert Thompson and H. W. Herridge, House leader of the New Democratic party.

Delegates endorsed the resolution—submitted by secretary-treasurer Trevor Gough on behalf of the CSAC national council—without discussion.

"If there is a keynote to this convention," Mr. Gough said as delegates applauded the motion, "it is: arbitration and negotiation now and not tomorrow."

The same theme ran through the opening remarks of CSAC national president, J. C. Best, and through the president's report, submitted at the opening session of the four-day convention.

Mr. Best said each government decision in dealing with its employees during the last four years has been made as a matter of expediency, brought on by the prevailing situation. The government had refused to recognize the employees' need for a system of negotiation and arbitration.

Ottawa Ready

OTTAWA (CP) — Finance Minister Nowlan said Tuesday he plans further wage talks with civil service associations.

Funeral Bill Disputed By Labor

VANCOUVER (CP) — The B.C. Federation of Labor said Tuesday the cost of funerals in B.C. had increased $100 over the last few years.

Its brief told the royal commission inquiry into the Workmen's Compensation Board $350 provided under the WCB Act for funerals of workers killed as a result of their employment is unrealistic. David Singler, WCB counsel, said the board agrees there should be an increase.

Breezy Report Backs Labor

OTTAWA (CP)—The Canadian Labor Congress has bolstered its demand for a "big, new massive push" for Canada's economy with a bright, breezy research report on labor's remedy for unemployment.

The report, prepared by Dr. Eugene Forsey and the CLC's research department, reiterates the CLC argument that a massive expansion in government spending is needed to solve unemployment and the country's economic ills.

The research paper, made public Tuesday by the CLC, argues that there is a great and growing need for such public projects as housing, slum clearance, hospitals, schools, recreation facilities, streets, public transit, sewage and water facilities, and so on.

MODERN TRANSPORT

South Africa's transportation system, most modern in Africa, has 14,000 miles of railway and 200,000 miles of roads.

More Polish In Greeting

WINNIPEG (CP) — Members of the Canadian Tourist Association Tuesday endorsed a sweeping program to raise the calibre of visitor reception services across Canada.

Goal of Project Hospitality is to attract high-calibre people to the tourist industry and to provide them and those in it with better training through seminars, films and vocational and on-the-job projects.

Dodgers Knot Playoff On Speed, Hits, Errors

By JACK HAND

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Speedy Maury Wills raced home on Ron Fairly's shallow sacrifice fly in the last of the ninth and kept Los Angeles Dodgers alive Tuesday with an 8-7 victory that evened the best-of-three National League pennant playoff series with San Francisco Giants at one game apiece.

Wills, given an unexpected life when rookie pitcher Gaylord Perry passed up a force play at third and threw to first base on Daryl Spencer's sacrifice bunt,

Today's deciding playoff game will be televised over Channel 8 starting at 1 p.m. Victoria time.

sped home ahead of Willie Mays' slightly off target throw on Fairly's fly to centre.

It was a tense, dramatic game—at four hours, 18 minutes the longest nine-inning contest in major league history—that ran the gamut from the sublime to the ridiculous. The Giants blew a 5-0 lead when the Dodgers broke their string of 35 consecutive scoreless innings with seven big runs in the sixth.

After his Giants fought back to tie the score at 7-7, manager Alvin Dark used four pitchers in the ninth and eight in all, before Wills, the champion base stealer, flashed home with the winning run.

The two teams will play a third and deciding game this afternoon at 1 p.m. (PDT).

Righthander Juan Marichal (18-11) of the Giants will oppose lefty John Podres (15-13) of the Dodgers.

The winner will go into the World Series against the New York Yankees, starting Thursday in the home park of the National League winner.

Reaches for Lefthander

Wills, who had stolen his 101st base earlier in the day, worked Bob Bolin for a walk to open the ninth. Now with Wills on first, a threat to break for second at any moment, Dark reached into his bullpen for lefthander Dick Lemay to hold Maury close to the base.

Lemay was so intent on keeping Wills close that he threw to first no less than eight times. In the meantime, he walked Junior Gilliam. Dark replaced Lemay with Perry, a 24-year-old righthander, recently recalled from Tacoma.

With men on first and second and nobody out, Alston called on Spencer, an ex-Giant, to lay down a bunt. This he did but it went back to Perry who started to throw to third where Jim Davenport was waiting. Instead he whirled and threw to first, retiring Spencer but letting Wills, representing that precious winning run, reach third.

Once again Dark went to the bullpen. This time he called for a lefty, Mike McCormick. He already had planned to walk Tommy Davis, the league's leading hitter, loading the bases. He wanted McCormick to pitch to Fairly, a left-handed batter.

But Fairly, who had one hit in his last 31 trips going into this game, crossed up the strategy. He flied to Mays in medium centre.

Wills tagged and sped home in safety past catcher John Orsino, who was pulled off slightly to the left of the plate up the baseline to get Mays' peg.

Sanford Had Cold

Jack Sanford, a 24-game winner for San Francisco, had a two-hitter and a 5-0 lead when he was taken out after walking Gilliam to lead off the sixth. Sanford had been forced to run hard in the top of the sixth, scoring from second base on Davenport's single with the third of four runs scored in that frame off Dodger starter Don Drysdale. Obviously Dark figured his pitcher, who was suffering from a heavy cold, was tired.

Before Sanford's successors could get the side out, seven big runs were in and the hungry Dodgers, scoreless since the sixth inning of Friday's game with St. Louis Cardinals and losers of five straight, were not to be denied.

Lee Walls, an obscure hand-me-down from the New York Mets in the Charlie Neal deal last winter, provided the big blow with a three-run pinch double off Billy O'Dell.

If the Giants had not come back to tie the score, Walls would have been the undisputed hero of the game.

Stan Williams, who was supposed to start but was passed over for Drysdale, was the man who shut the door on the Giants in the last 1⅓ innings. As a result Williams was the winner.

Bolin, fifth of eight pitchers used by Dark, was charged with the loss because he walked Wills, who scored the winning run.

NEW YORK (AP)—Arnold Palmer, the golf champion whose spectacular comebacks have thrilled millions on television, is going into a new form of show business.

He will have a movie role in Bob Hope's new comedy, Call Me Bwana—a takeoff on big game hunting.

Ump Wins Again

Umpire Jocko Conlan got terrific argument but kept umpires' record of never changing decision intact in eighth-inning rhubarb with San Francisco Giants' Willie Mays and coach Whitey Lockman (3). Mays tried to go from first to third base but was called out on throw from Tommy Davis to Junior Gilliam, even though first photo seems that ump is calling him safe. Mays' and Lockman's contortions perhaps helped them let off steam but didn't impress Conlan much. Los Angeles won, 8-7, to tie best-of-three National League playoff series.—(AP Photofax)

Relax America—It's Tranquilizer Time

News Item: Governor Barnett of Mississippi has been granted a 10-day reprieve in his contempt of court case as things simmer down a bit in Oxford, Miss. The following is offered without comment:

By CHARLES McDOWELL

The world series will begin Thursday, and it is a good bet that Americans will not voluntarily do anything significant in the succeeding days while the two teams play baseball.

We say this on the basis of recent history. Americans don't appreciate how much the world series affects them and their government. It is a subject that needs a thorough investigation, and we commend it to qualified scholars with a high capacity for astonishment.

Our sketchy and amateurish investigation covered merely the past three years. We relied on three copies of "The World Almanac," each of which carried a chronology of a year's significant events, not including baseball games, and a copy of "The Little Red Book of Major League Baseball," which carried a chronology of all world series games.

In 1961 the world series started on Oct. 4. Employees of the Ford Motor Company had begun a nationwide strike on Oct. 3, but nothing significant happened on Oct. 4, when New York beat Cincinnati, or on Oct. 5, when Cincinnati beat New York.

On Oct. 6 the teams took the day off to travel from New York to Cincinnati. In the lull, President Kennedy announced his fallout shelter program and held a significant conference with Soviet Foreign Minister Gromyko.

There were no significant events in America while New York was winning three straight from Cincinnati on Oct. 7, 8, and 9.

With the world series over, the United States recognized the newly independent Syria on Oct. 10. (The Soviet Union had recognized Syria on Oct. 7, while New York was winning the third game from Cincinnati, and there was some criticism of the United States for being slow on the draw.)

NEWS FLOOD

On Oct. 11 there was a flood of news significant enough to find a place in the almanac—the President sent General Taylor to Viet Nam, the X-15 rocket plane set an altitude record, and, of all things, the Ford employees went back to work.

Let us go back another year and consider 1960. The world series started on Oct. 5. On Oct. 4 the budget bureau made a significant announcement about the economy, but nothing significant happened on Oct. 5 when New York beat Pittsburgh or on Oct. 6 when Pittsburgh beat New York.

There was no game on Oct. 7 while the teams travelled to New York. Mr. Kennedy and Nixon took this opportunity to have their second televised debate.

NEWS DROUGHT

New York won the game on Oct. 8, and Pittsburgh won on Oct. 9 and 10—all three days being devoid of significant developments in the national news.

On Oct. 11, while the teams made their way back to Pittsburgh, there was a flurry of action in New York where the United Nations voted down a significant Khrushchev motion. On Oct. 12 the Yankees beat the Pirates, and Khrushchev, no baseball fan, waved his shoe significantly in the United Nations. (This should not to counted as American activity, and, anyway, the presiding officer adjourned the session.)

The Pirates won the deciding game on Oct. 13 and the world series was over. That cleared the way for the third Kennedy-Nixon debate, which was held that night, and Khrushchev flew home.

IKE JOINS IN

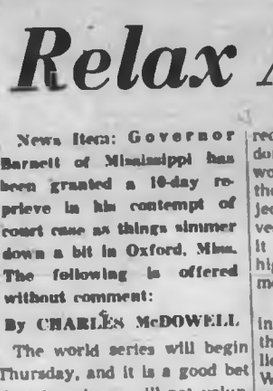
In the next few days, there was a significant development in the quiz-show scandal, the United States recalled its ambassador and embargoed exports to Cuba, and President Eisenhower came belatedly into the Kennedy-Nixon campaign.

The previous year, 1959, had followed the pattern. Just before the world series began on Oct. 1, some 70,000 longshoremen went on strike. Nothing significant happened while Los Angeles was beating Chicago in six games, the last one on Oct. 8.

On Oct. 9, the President of Mexico arrived in the United States for a significant visit, Charles Van Doren was subpoenaed by a congressional committee, and the longshoremen went back to work.

All this convinces us that nothing significant will happen in the next several days during the world series. As this is written, one thing does worry us—the scheduled six-orbit flight of Walter Schirra. The theory of Nothing Significant During the World Series would remain intact, however, if he took his ride on the day after the second game, when the teams have a day off to travel.

Disgust Transformed to Delight For Ron Fairly, Stan Williams



It's Gum, Chum

Actress Doris Day, a dedicated Dodger devotee, was fairly bubbling with excitement yesterday when Los Angeles tied playoff series.

LOS ANGELES (AP)—It was a day that transformed disgust into delight for Ron Fairly and Stan Williams, who won lead roles in the final act of Tuesday's second National League playoff game.

Fairly, who had only one hit in his last 31 times at bat before Tuesday's game, drove in the winning run with a ninth-inning sacrifice fly as Los Angeles Dodgers evened the playoff at one game apiece by defeating San Francisco Giants 8-7.

But he couldn't have been any more delighted than Williams, the winning pitcher. Stan, a powerful but erratic righthander, hadn't won a game since Sept. 11.

"I thought I was going to start today," Stan said, "and I tossed and turned most of last night—thinking about this situation and that.

"I was really disappointed when they told me (Don) Drysdale was starting instead. I had been building up for the game and I really believed I could beat them."

'DESPERATION MOVE'

Dodger pitching coach Joe Becker said frankly that Williams was finally called out of the bullpen in the eighth inning "in a desperation move."

"Larry Sherry was a little stiff in the shoulder, so we didn't want to use him," Becker said. "We were down to rock bottom."

In the dressing room, Williams' mind drifted back three years to the day he won another playoff game for the Dodgers, against Milwaukee Braves.

"I was much more nervous in this game than I was in 1959," Williams said. "I was shaking like a leaf. I think it was because I just haven't been getting much work lately."

The uproar in the Dodger dressing room was tremendous. It sounded like they had won at least a decisive World Series game.

"Let's go, gang, we'll get those so-and-so's tomorrow," Fairly shouted, only he didn't exactly say "so-and-so's."

Jack Wood Wins Event

Jack Wood of the Victoria Golf Club has won the Harry Young Trophy, posting the best gross score in the 28th annual greenskeepers' tournament at the Gorge Vale Golf Club.

W. Dainard, also of the Victoria club, took the Sayward Trophy for best net score with B. Wilson of the Victoria club as runner-up. Putting competition was won by C. Barwick of Royal Colwood Golf and Country Club with Dainard the runner-up.

Lions, Larks With Lunch

Victoria Touchdown Club members and any others interested will see a film of a Canadian Football League game between B.C. Lions and Montreal Alouettes at their noon luncheon Thursday.

The luncheon has been switched to the Tally-Ho Hotel on Douglas Street. Starting time is 12 noon.

Crackers Win

LOUISVILLE, Ky. (AP) — Atlanta Crackers took the Little World Series by winning an unprecedented doubleheader by identical scores of 2-1 over Louisville Tuesday night. It gave them the series, 4-3.

'Called Him Safe' In Dark's Opinion

LOS ANGELES (AP)—Manager Alvin Dark said it appeared to him umpire Jocko Conlan first gave the "safe" signal before calling San Francisco's Willie Mays out in a crucial third base play in the eighth inning of Tuesday's playoff game with Los Angeles Dodgers.

Conlan stated emphatically that Mays was out and that was how he had signalled.

With the Giants trailing 7-5, Jimmy Davenport opened the inning with a single and Mays followed with another.

When pinch hitter Ed Bailey singled up the middle, Mays tried to go from first to third and was called out on a throw from Tommy Davis to Jim Gilliam.

GOING BAD

"He gave the safe sign and then out," Dark said, and when informed that Conlan told newspapermen there had been no such sign, the manager said:—"My eyes are going bad then."

"I guess I was out," said Mays resignedly.

The Giants scored two runs in the eighth to tie the court but lost 8-7 in the ninth.

Dark said he thought Gaylord Perry could have made a successful play on Maury Wills going into third base after Daryl Spencer bunted to the pitcher in the ninth.

"The play was to third," Dark said. "I think he could have made the putout."

Instead Perry threw out the batter and Wills scored the winning run on Ron Fairly's sacrifice fly.

Palermo's Influence Present In Sonny Liston Training Camp

NEW YORK (AP)—A New York boxer testified Tuesday there was a recent link between Frank (Blinky) Palermo, a racketeer and fight manager, and the camp of newly-crowned heavyweight champion Sonny Liston.

Cortez Stewart, a 28-year-old heavyweight, told a state legislative committee that Palermo was one of the men who tried to hire him to work as a sparring partner for Liston this year before the latter's title fight last Tuesday with champion Floyd Patterson. Liston knocked out Patterson in 2:06 of the first round at Chicago.

Liston was refused a licence by the New York State Athletic Commission for his alleged affiliations with unsavory characters, including Palermo. Because of this, the Liston-Patterson fight was shifted from New York to Chicago.

The commission had called a meeting to discuss whether to recognize Liston as champion when it was told to hold off by Assemblyman Haywood Plumadore (Rep. — Saranac Lake), chairman of the legislative committee.

TO ANSWER CHARGES

Plumadore instructed committee counsel to offer Liston and his managers of record an opportunity to appear at a public hearing to "comment on, affirm or deny" Tuesday's testimony.

The committee was appointed April 6 to investigate boxing in the state following the uproar caused by the death of welterweight champion Benny (Kid) Paret in a title fight with Emile Griffith at Madison Square Garden.

Stewart testified he was told in Palermo's presence in Philadelphia April 7 that if he worked with Liston he would get "a prestige shot" on the Liston-Patterson card and that it would be to his advantage.

He said he had been promised $50 a day and expenses and thought it was "a fair arrangement." Later he said he was informed Liston could not afford $50 a day because Liston was in debt and was incurring heavy fight expenses. Stewart said he refused unless he got some money in advance.

State Senator William T. Conklin asked: "Was there a suggestion of a sinister background that you were becoming involved in?"

"Yes," said Stewart.

The next public hearing of the probe has been scheduled for Oct. 11.

$1,000,000 Refused For Pele

RIO DE JANEIRO (AP) — Milan's Internazionale soccer football club reportedly has offered $1,000,000 for the transfer of Brazil's famous star, Edson (Pele) Arantes Nascimento. The offer has been turned down.

Pele belongs to the Santos club which recently won the world's championship.

Boxer Wins Bout, Dies

GEORGETOWN, British Guiana (AP) — Boxer Henry Alvin Brown won his first professional bout here Sunday night—and died 10 minutes later.

Brown, 26, was sitting dazed on the canvas when the referee stepped over to raise his right glove at the end of the six round bout.

He had been floored by a crashing left hook and a short right to the jaw from opponent Linton John. Brown fell heavily hitting his head on the canvas.

He was lifted out of the ring and 10 minutes later two doctors pronounced him dead.

Referee Bill Brown consulted the judges before walking across the ring to declare Brown the winner.

Buckaroos Tackle Canucks Tonight

Two National Hockey League clubs have come and gone but tonight's hockey at Memorial Arena will feature the club that beat the Stanley Cup champions on Sunday night.

That, manager-coach Hal Laycoe proudly informs, is the Portland Buckaroos, who raised eyebrows with that 5-1 win over Toronto Maple Leafs.

Looking better each out and certain to start the Western Hockey League season as one of the favorites, the Buckaroos will tonight get some inkling of how they stack up in their own league when they try Vancouver Canucks for size.

Laycoe will use the same players, with two exceptions, that were used here against the Leafs last Friday. Defenceman Al Merlo will not dress but forward Tom McCarthy will play. Defenceman Jack Bionda reported to the club yesterday but won't play.

Canucks, coached by Max McNab and owned by Fred Hume this season, have a nucleus of last season's club augmented by additions from New York Rangers.

Gilles Villemure, the rookie who played a half-game here for New York Rangers, is listed as the starting goalkeeper. Les Hunt, Al Lebrun and Adam Keller, a younger brother of Ralph, are defencemen.

Up front Canucks are led by Phil Maloney. Other forwards include ex-Victoria Cougars Barrie Ross and George Ford, Larry Popein, Bob McCusker, Jim Baird, Ron Hutchinson, Don Bamburak, Buddy Boone, Wayne Hall and Howie Hughes.

Game time is 8:30 and tickets are on sale at Memorial Arena.

Practise Safety . . . Preach Safety . . . Promote Safety . . . Wear a Red Cap . . . That is the message fish and game clubs and the provincial department of recreation are trying to put across this first Hunter Safety Week, Oct. 1 to 7.

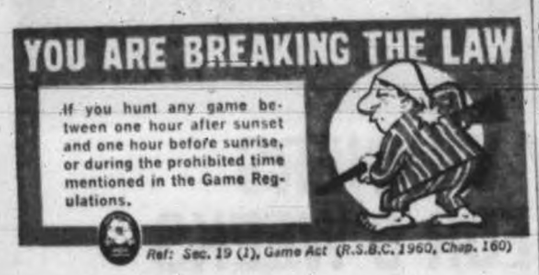
They also urge all hunters to wear their red caps to work this week to bring home the symbol of hunter safety.

Nowhere, more than Vancouver Island, should the hunter safety theme be preached over and over again, because Vancouver Island has the worst shooting accident rate in all of British Columbia.

In the 1957 to 1961 period 97,500 hunters on Vancouver Island were involved in 44 hunting accidents, for a record of 4.3 accidents per 10,000 hunters, compared to 2.3 in the interior and 1.5 on the mainland.

There were six hunting fatalities in B.C. last year . . . and four of them were on Vancouver Island, two of them involved minors.

* * *



* * *

Maybe on Vancouver Island we have learned a lesson . . . there have been no hunting accidents reported so far this year, and in all of B.C. there has only been one hunting fatality, when an American hunter walked into the fire of his partner.

Last year hunting accidents occurred with such regularity on Vancouver Island that a mild . . . and probably worthwhile . . . hysteria evolved. Safety panels emerged and safety became the daily conversation topic.

Some called for harsh punishment for offenders. Others called for more safety education. Both are probably in order and fish and game clubs are doing their part in junior firearms safety programs, which are setting hundreds of youngsters on the right path.

South Vancouver Island Rangers Inc.—Optimist safety film—"Play It Safe"—is doing its part to promote safety and has now been approved for showing as part of the public school program.

On Vancouver Island under 18-year-olds are the cause of most accidents, 17.1 per 10,000 hunters, 18 to 21-year-olds 4.8 per 10,000 hunters, 22 to 30-year-olds 2.3, and more than 30 years, 1.8.

October, with 37 per cent of shooting accidents, is the worst month. Then comes November with 24 per cent, September with 19 per cent and December with 12 per cent.

Make sure of your target and always carry and use firearms safely. Don't carry loaded firearms in a car or boat. Don't point your gun at anyone. If your partner isn't a safe hunter, don't hunt with him. Your life is the one at stake.

* * *

Big game hunters get their chance from next Saturday, Oct. 6, to Oct. 21, when elk become fair game on Vancouver Island.

B.C. Forest Products officials tell us the honor system is again in force to the Shaw Creek area. Pick up your permit at a box at the gate, read the regulations, sign the form, and behave accordingly in that privileged area.

Last year 33 elk (down from 43 in 1960) were shot on Vancouver Island . . . five at Nanaimo River on opening weekend, six at Nanaimo Lakes on opening weekend and one the weekend after, three at Shaw Creek on opening weekend and one on the last weeknd, on at McKay-Wardroper Creeks on opening weekend and four during the rest of the season, two from the Elk River band in the Boot Lake-Bacon Lake area and nine from the Gold River band around Stewart Lake.

Vancouver Island regional game biologist Don McCaughran, who plans a special study of Vancouver Island elk, says the elk harvest is just being scratched.

Elk are plentiful on the Island at several points, but hunting them is difficult.

The access program, which works out fairly well for deer hunters, is the big problem to a successful elk hunt on Vancouver Island.

Access to private logging areas is granted pretty well generally on the Island now from 6 a.m. until 3 p.m. at weekends. This allows time for a deer to be packed out of the woods, but packing a big elk out in that time is another problem. It usually has to be packed out in quarters.

You can't rely on getting elk beside the road, although there have been two unauthenticated reports of sightings of elk on the Alberni Highway in recent weeks.

Elk hunting should be an overnight proposition, or better still, a three day outing . . . one day to get into elk country and two days to pack out the elk.

About the best a hunter can do under existing access regulations is to hope for an elk within reasonable distance of the access road, then to pack part of it out by 3 p.m., and then go back for the rest of it the next day.

Wakeham, Teammates Leave for Japan Today

VANCOUVER (CP).—Canada's world amateur golf team assembled here Tuesday and warmed up for the championship tournament in Ito City, Japan.

The five-man team, handled by non-playing captain Jack Leddy of Saskatoon, leaves for Japan today with high hopes of wining the team title.

The members are Nick Weslock of Burlington, Ont., Bob Wylie of Calgary, Gary Cowan of Kitchener and Bill Wakeham of Victoria.

Cowan, the 1961 Canadian amateur champion, posted the best round during Tuesday's informal practice. He carried a sizzling six-under-par 66 over Capilano's mountainside course. Weslock, at 45, the veteran of the team, Wylie and Wakeham all shot two-under 70s.

The team will practise at Ito City for a week prior to the championship which starts Oct. 10. The world tournament is a medal play event which runs four days. Only the three top daily rounds of each team count toward the competition. Canada has finished sixth in the two previous championships, which are held every other year.

Twenty-five countries have entered this year's competition, with the U.S. team favored to regain the title.

Purse Worth $2,000

Centennial Handicap Set

By JIM TANG

Plans are set for the richest thoroughbred race ever run on Vancouver Island.

It will be for a purse of $2,000, probably over a mile and 70 yards, and will be held on the last day of the current meeting at Sandown Park, now officially Saturday, Oct. 13.

It will be called the Victoria Centennial Handicap and is expected to draw some of the finest thoroughbreds in the province. There was a report yesterday that there was a god chance that Dave Diamond would bring over Jr. Balladier for the event.

Desert Fire, Ky. Look, Mega Var, Mandy's Magic and Kilocycles are other prospective entries.

SPECIAL PROGRAM

To commemorate the occasion, a special program, which will include the daily racing program, is being prepared by Derek Todd.

Plans were finalized yesterday when it was officially announced that the Sandown meet would be extended to 17 days, making it possible to hold getaway day a week from Saturday.

With the granting of an extra day, tomorrow's scheduled card has been postponed until next Wednesday with the extra day set for a week from Saturday.

NEW SCHEDULE

The new schedule calls for racing today, Friday, Saturday, Monday and the following Saturday.

Eight races are scheduled for today, three of them over a mile and 70 yards, and the prospect is that it will come up mud.

Two sprint handicaps are the co-features with a small but select field in the seventh race promising some interesting developments as Over Current steps up to challenge the likes of Auntie Lottie, UR-Mia, Minstrel Man and Monday's Image.

First post time is again 2:15 p.m.

Big Derby Coming At Cowichan Bay

The Oct. 6, 7 and 8 Thanksgiving weekend is the big time for the annual Cowichan Bay Salmon Club's coho derby, which offers $100 a day for the biggest coho, plus 15 other daily prizes.

Although last weekend's rain drew many of the coho up into the Cowichan River others are starting to gang up in Cowichan Bay waters and prospects look bright for the weekend.

DERBY BOUNDARIES

Fishing waters will include all Cowichan Bay waters extending to a line from Hatch Point to Cape Keppel, and all waters of Sansum Narrows to Bold Bluff and Octopus Reef.

Starting times each day will be dawn and finishing time 4:30 p.m. at the government wharf at Cowichan.

Cowichan Bay is about the best fishing spot on the Island and every derby fish will be eligible for The Daily Colonist King Fisherman contest, provided it weighs five pounds or more.

Road Deaths Barely Below 1961

Motor vehicle accident fatalities remained a hairsbreadth behind last year's level for the first seven months of 1962 but total accidents are up 4 per cent.

This year's deaths stood at 207 up to the end of August — just one behind the same period in 1961.

MORE INJURED

But injuries are running 7 per cent higher and property damage of $8,400,000 is up by the same percentage.

August's 32 fatalities were up 19 per cent, injuries were up 34 per cent and accidents were up 35 per cent.

August property damage totalling $1,400,000 was up 51 per cent.

"God's Greatest Nuisance"

Nova Scotia's famous "Father Jimmy" Tompkins was a firm believer that God helps those who help themselves. In October Reader's Digest read how this frail little priest became known as "God's greatest nuisance", and why he talked about the price of fish instead of the wages of sin, and pioneered the self-help Antigonish Movement to free fishermen and miners from his two pet hates — poverty and ignorance. Second PTA Group Disbands In Week

Mount View High School PTA disbanded Monday night, making it the second association of its kind to do so within a week.

Central Junior High School PTA disbanded Sept. 25, and it is expected several other associations may soon do the same.

Mrs. R. B. Restall, president of the Victoria and District Parent-Teacher Council, said two or three associations are in trouble due to poorer attendance by parents when their children reach high school. She said parent interest is strongest when the children begin school and falls off progressively as they reach higher grades.

Promoted

Promoted to commander, Lt.-Cmdr. V. P. Connolly, 429 Moresby, is principal medical officer and consultant dermatologist at HMCS Naden hospital. In present position since November, 1961, Cmdr. Connolly is a native of Birmingham, England.

Liquor Stores

Self-Serving 'Just a Test'

The provincial government is not at the present time considering opening any more self-serve liquor stores, Attorney-General Bonner said yesterday.

He said regardless of the economic success of the prototype self-serve liquor outlet in Vancouver it was still just "an experiment."

He was concerned about objections launched by many Vancouver residents and other persons in B.C. around the time of the store's opening June 5.

Most were based on opposition to any move which makes liquor purchases easier.

Liquor commissioner Col. Donald McGugan said the self-serve store is handling with a staff of 10 the volume of sales usually associated with a 20-man store.

Private Help Asked To Deal with Sect

A number of private organizations have been quietly asked by the government to render assistance in assimilating Freedomites into the Canadian way of life, Attorney-General Bonner said yesterday.

He declined to say which organizations have been asked, but confirmed a report that Premier Bennett has asked the B.C. Parent-Teachers' Association for help.

NON-GOVERNMENT

He said the appeal for help from non-government groups has been made largely because the Freedomites resent anything that smacks of government.

"There are organizations," he said, "that help newcomers to assimilate and although the Freedomites have been here many years they have not assimilated.

FOSTER HOMES

He believed a step towards assimilation could be made if Freedomite youngsters could be placed in Canadian foster homes, but he added this would require parental consent.

Meanwhile, he said, the government has not changed its "hands-off" policy as far as the 750 Freedomite marchers in the Fraser Valley is concerned. The marchers are bound for Agassiz where some of their relatives and friends are confined in a federal prison for Doukhobors.

He said RCMP have been instructed not to enforce the Kent municipality bylaw forbidding entry to the Freedomite marchers until it has been tested in the courts.

Forty Firms In Bureau?

Membership in the Vancouver Island Better Business Bureau should exceed 40 firms following the first directors' meeting Friday.

W. D. Tindall, manager-director, last night said about 35 firms are awaiting approval as members and he now has a salesman who is expected to get a number more by Friday.

He also expects word by then that the Victoria application has been approved by the Canadian Better Business Bureau.

Industrials Stage Rally

TORONTO (CP)—At the close, prices were at their highest with the industrial index ahead more than four points.

In the main list, Algoma Steel climbed 1½, Bell Telephone and Aluminium ⅞ each, Dominion Foundries and Steel 1¼ and Walker-Gooderham ⅝.

Consumers' Gas rose ⅛, Interprovincial Pipe Line ½ and Moore Corporation ⅝.

Banks were a weakening influence, with Montreal, Nova Scotia, Toronto - Dominion and Royal all off in a ⅛ to ⅝ range.

In base metals, International Nickel gained ½, Hudson Bay Mining ⅝ and Denison ¼, while Labrador slipped ⅜.

Bell Rights Rise

MONTREAL (CP) — Stocks made a strong comeback after a morning of falling prices. At the close, most key issues were higher.

The pattern for many blue chips was a drop immediately after the opening, and then a gradual recovery to close at the day's high.

Bell Telephone rose sharply, gaining ⅞ to 49¼. The Bell rights rose six cents to 78 cents on a heavy volume of more than 150,000 shares.

Some issues took heavy losses however. Consolidated Paper fell 1¼ to 36½, Quebec Natural Gas lost 75 cents to $4.75, Quebec Natural Gas preferred fell two points to 56, Canadian Husky fell ⅜ to 6⅞ and Hudson's Bay Company fell ⅛ to 10⅞.

Sluggish Advance

NEW YORK (AP)—The stock market found some support around the intermediate lows reached in July. Prices rose in generally sluggish trading.

The slackness of trading reflected a lack of genuine conviction of higher prices, analysts said. Generally speaking, the best gains were made by stocks which have taken the worst losses recently.

Mines Recover

VANCOUVER—Craigmont and Granduc made small gains among mines and Vantor recovered to .21 among oils. Industrial changes were small.

Montreal Bonds

MONTREAL (CP) — Bond prices were stronger in all sections towards the close.

Firm Seeks Way Out

By HARRY YOUNG
Colonist Business Editor

Quebec Natural Gas Co., the Cinderella of the Canadian natural gas industry, is attempting to get out of its financial morass by asking its shareholders on Oct. 26 to approve a change in the capital structure of the company.

The 150,000 cumulative preferred shares of $100 par on which dividends of 6 per cent started to accrue Sept. 1, 1962; are scheduled for change into non-cumulative convertible preferred shares on which dividends will not be mandatory until 1968.

CRISIS TO CRISIS

Quebec Natural Gas has been in trouble since it was found its original calculations were out of line, and it has been moving from one financial crisis to another while the company has tried to improve its rate structure.

With most of its applications now approved by the public utilities commission, the company has managed to tide over its immediate difficulties with a $7,500,000 one-year loan from New York bankers.

Structure Changing

The new preferred will be made convertible at any time from May 1, 1963 into 13⅓ common shares of the company (equivalent to $7.50 a share).

The common shareholders will be asked to increase the authorized common share capital to 10,000,000 shares. Outstanding at present are 1,514,000 share, and it is proposed to create 7,300,000 new shares.

WILL COST $137,000,000

Shell Investments Ltd. expects to mail its $52.50 a share offer to shareholders of Canadian Oil Companies within the next two weeks.

The $137,000,000 required to complete the purchase will be financed from the central funds of the Royal Dutch-Shell group of companies which now stand at $500,000,000.

Shell of Canada, which will take over Canadian Oil, is expected to arrange some more permanent form of financing next year, probably in the form of long-term funded debt.

QUOTAS SOUGHT

The U.S. Lumbermen's Association yesterday asked the U.S. tariff commission to limit Canadian softwood imports to 10 per cent of the market, and to raise the tariff from the present one per cent to about 8 per cent.

The U.S. association said it was being partially massacred by imports from Canada.

So far efforts to raise the tariff and apply a quota have received little encouragement from U.S. authorities.

BOOST IN PROFITS

Corporation profits before taxes in the second quarter of 1962 were up 11.5 per cent from the corresponding period of 1961 and three per cent more than in the first quarter of 1962, according to the Dominion Bureau of Statistics.

The estimated profit for the April-June quarter this year is $967,000,000 against $841,000,000 a year ago.

EGG SUPPORT AGAIN

The government is to continue its support price for grade A large eggs at 34 cents a dozen for another year.

Agriculture Minister Hamilton said yesterday the rate was the same as last year and represented about one cent a dozen above the estimated national weighted average. The payments are limited to 4,000 dozen eggs for each producer.

CHIPS FROM KELOWNA

Wood chips from sawmills in the Okanagan are to be shipped by rail and barge to feed the Crown Zellerbach Canada pulp and paper Elk Falls mill at Campbell River.

The company has entered into a contract to buy wood chips from S. M. Simpson Ltd. sawmills at Kelowna and Lumby. The flow will start as soon as barking and chipping equipment has been installed at Kelowna.

Since 1960 Crown Zellerbach has been shipping chips for Elk Falls from five sawmills in the Kamloops area.

Grain Markets

WINNIPEG (CP) — Prices were irregular towards the close of dull trading.

Overnight export loadings of Canadian wheat included: Poland, 820,000 bushels; United Kingdom, 500,000; Japan, 520,000; The Netherlands, 460,000; Philippines, 200,000; West Germany, 55,000; Belgium, 20,000.

Class two, IWA and domestic wheat prices, basis Lakehead, were all unchanged.

Causeway

New Wall Solves All

Victoria could solve its Causeway congestion problems at one stroke and likely get the federal and provincial governments to share total costs, Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday.

The mayor suggested a long-range solution to growing traffic problems in the area would be to build a new causeway wall about 30 feet behind the present wall.

ADD TWO LANES

This would make it possible, he said, to add two more lanes of traffic, possibly one to carry heavy truck traffic from Wharf Street and the other to provide parking for sightseers.

"This would be expensive to carry out, but it is in the interest of all levels of government to participate in such a scheme," Mayor Wilson added.

HEARD REPORT

Earlier the city public works committee heard a report from the federal public works department the foundations of the present Causeway wall, which will remain quite safe if left alone, would be in danger of collapse if any dredging was carried out in the Inner Harbor.

LOCAL PROJECT

While hinting it would be willing to contribute toward cost of the dredging operation when it is eventually carried out, the Ottawa letter said strengthening of the Causeway wall was a local project.

The only hope of federal assistance, it added, lay in winter works grants.

"I'm not so sure about that," said committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. "Perhaps one of the reasons for the bad foundation is the pounding of heavy trucks passing by day after day as they head for the federal docks at Ogden Point."

Ald. A. W. Toone said the Inner Harbor is in a "deplorable state" and should be dredged immediately if small craft are to continue to come to Victoria.

The committee decided to feel out possibility of contributions toward the project by Capital Improvement District Commission and the federal government.

Turkeys Cost More

Mrs. Housewife will pay five to seven cents more per pound for her frozen turkey in Victoria this Thanksgiving than she did last year.

She'll pay quite a bit more than that if she buys a New York dressed bird, freshly killed and with head and feet still attached. Selling point here is that it's a mature bird full of flavor.

Supermarket managers in Greater Victoria declined to quote actual prices on the grounds competition may force prices down at the last minute.

The consumer can expect to pay five to seven cents more per pound than last year because there is a shortage of turkeys on the Canadian market, said Maurice Randall, poultry officer for the department of agriculture.

Recreation

Liaison Body Urged

By IAN STREET

Oak Bay wants a joint liaison committee on recreation facilities in Greater Victoria.

Coun. Allan Cox said at an intermunicipal meeting yesterday he is opposed to the idea of a super-commission such as the one suggested by the Community Welfare Council to run recreation in the whole area.

POSSIBLY LATE

"We are possibly late in the game," Coun. Cox said, "but in Oak Bay we are giving very serious thought to this matter of recreation facilities."

"I believe, however, that it would be foolish for a municipality the size of Oak Bay to go bulling ahead without any knowledge of what our neighbors already have or are planning."

REPRESENTATIVES

To make the liaison committee work, he said, it should consist of one elected representative of each municipality.

City finance chairman Ald. Arthur Dowell said he saw a lot of merit in the plan. Mayor R. B. Wilson also said the scheme might work well.

WURTELE: TABLE

It received enthusiastic support from Cdgn. G. K. Sammon of Esquimalt. He said a likely project for consideration by such a liaison group, if it was established, would be whether the proposed downtown recreation centre for senior citizens could be incorporated into the new YMCA-YWCA building to avoid duplicating facilities.

But Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele asked that the Oak Bay proposal be tabled until all members of the committee had time to consider the implications of the report.

Within Two Weeks

Vancouver Tug Firm Opening Victoria Base

By JACK FRY

A Vancouver towboat company plans to enter the towboat business in Victoia within two weeks in competition with Island Tug and Barge Ltd.

Negotiations are nearly completed for wharfage and office space here, Paul Cliff, executive of the M. R. Cliff Tugboat Company, said yesterday.

WILL BASE TUGS

Officials of the company which is amalgamated with River Towing Company of Vancouver, plan to base two or three sea-going tugs in Victoria for a start.

The amalgamated group has a fleet of 40 tugboats and numerous barges, with offices in Vancouver, Prince Rupert, Harrison and Hope.

MAJOR EXPANSION

Opening of the Victoria office will be a major expansion for the group, said Mr. Cliff.

"We do a fair amount of towing into Victoria at the present time, hauling log booms to the mills from Howe Sound and the upper parts of the Island. We hope to expand this business."

ENLARGE SERVICE

The group also hopes to enlarge its barge service, hauling more freight and taking chips to pulp mills.

It will be in direct competition with the large fleet of Island Tug and Barge Ltd. and with Warren Tug Co. Ltd.

PLANNING STAGES

The proposed operation was in the planning stages for two years. "It was quite a struggle keeping it secret," said Mr. Cliff.

Asked if the company intends to challenge Island Tug and Barge, he replied: "It's a free country."

HEARING RUMORS

Gordon Elworthy, operations manager for Island Tug and Barge, later said "we've been hearing rumors for the past eight or 10 months.

"Competition never hurt anyone. In the tug business, shipping can come into any area overnight—it can also leave overnight.

EVERY DAY

"It's something we're faced with every day. It may be more economical for them to station a tug here than bring one over from Vancouver. Likewise, we have several tugs in Vancouver," said Mr. Elworthy.

"Competition works freely up and down the coast, and the fact a person locates headquarters in one place is up to the internal operation of the outfit," he said.

WITH ONE TUG

Paul Cliff is a nephew of the late M. R. Cliff who started business with one tugboat in Vancouver in 1920. President and managing director of the amalgamated operation is Cecil Cosulich.

Second Escape

Trussed Puppy Rejoins Family

By BOB PETHICK

A little brown and white dog who has cheated death twice in the past six months, ran joyfully into his owner's arms last night.

Rennie, a terrier-like, year-old pup, trussed with wire and iron and thrown into Brentwood reservoir yesterday, managed to free one paw and keep himself afloat until he was rescued by L. R. Slater, 6619 Central Saanich Road, a waterworks employee.

Some time ago, the dog's owner, K. J. Comer, 3914 West Saanich Road, found Rennie on a small island in the San Juan River, near Port Renfrew.

"He was just about dead when I found him," Mr. Comer said. "I brought him back to Victoria and took him to the vet. I figured maybe he was an Indian dog and had been abandoned."

* * *

The Comers have a 6-month-old daughter, Tia.

"Rennie's her dog," said Mr. Comer.

"It's a pretty terrible thing," he said. "I can't understand why anyone would do something like that.

"I hope they catch whoever did it."

* * *

He said the dog put up a great fuss when they went to claim him last night.

"He was lying down and still kind of shaky," said Mr. Comer. "But he sure was glad to see us."

Grilse Shoots Herself

HMCS Grilse accidentally shot herself with a torpedo during a recent exercise.

An errant torpedo fired by the submarine assumed a circular course and came back to hit the Grilse's hull.

A naval spokesman yesterday said there was "no damage."

The Grilse was on regular exercises in Juan de Fuca Strait when the accident happened. A faulty guidance mechanism was given as the reason for the mishap.

For Play Development

Saanich Seeks Varsity Help

Victoria University Development Board may be asked by Saanich to participate in joint development of university property for recreational uses.

Parks and recreation committee will recommend at next council meeting that Saanich approach university officials on the scheme which has already proven successful with Saanich School District 63.

Saanich is the only municipality in Greater Victoria which has such a working agreement with a school board. The system was conceived three years ago by Saanich parks foreman Bert Richman.

Under the existing agreement, which is up for renewal later this year, Saanich designs, develops and maintains school playing fields, and pays one-third of over-all costs.

In return, the municipality is permitted use of grounds after school for such organized sports as soccer, rugby, softball and Little League practice.

A special Saanich council committee is expected to approach the Greater Victoria school board next week to see if similar arrangements can be made for School District 61 playgrounds situated within Saanich municipal boundary.

Victoria Firm Wins Golf Club Contract

Luney Brothers and Hamilton have been awarded the contract for the remodelling and expansion of the clubhouse at Victoria Golf Club in Oak Bay.

Total value of the job will amount to about $100,000.

Work is to start immediately and the contractors hope that the job will be completed in 18 weeks.

Involved is an extension of the building to the front, a new main entry, relocation of the offices, dining room, lounges and new kitchen and bar premises. The locker room is to be completely remodelled.

A large part of the contract is for new electrical wiring, new plumbing and new kitchen equipment.

Club members authorized the expenditure of up to $100,000 on the alterations at a meeting last year, and at the annual meeting in April membership dues and entrance fees were increased to meet the increased costs.

The alterations are to be made in phases so that modified clubhouse facilities will be available for most of the construction period.

Members, however, will have restricted service and for a period normal locker room accommodation will not be available. Interruptions in water and electric power supply are scheduled.

In December

Saanich Vote Will Fix Fate of Merger Study

What a December referendum in Saanich will actually decide is whether voters want study of Victoria-Saanich amalgamation to go ahead, says a Victoria Chamber of Commerce committee.

A statement released last night by Richard Bower, chairman of the chamber amalgamation committee, said: "It has become evident to the committee that there is little hope of re-instituting the Victoria-Saanich municipal amalgamation study until the Saanich amalgamation referendum is held in December.

WAY THEN OPEN

"If, at that time the referendum achieves an affirmative vote, as it is to be hoped it will, the way would then be open to the two municipalities to continue their negotiations with the object of presenting their councils and their electors with the full facts and figures necessary to judge whether or not amalgamation is desirable."

It is expected Saanich voters will mark in December a ballot asking simply whether they favor amalgamation with Victoria.

ONLY BYLAWS

But, said Mr. Bower, elaborating on the statement, amalgamation could not be brought about by such a referendum but only by bylaws in each of Victoria and Saanich, approved by 60 per cent of the property-owning voters of each municipality.

"Whatever it says on the ballot," voters will be deciding whether they want the study to continue, he said.

REOPEN STUDY

The statement said both Mayor R. B. Wilson of Victoria and Reeve Stanley Murphy of Saanich have said they personally are willing to reopen a joint study of amalgamation.

Informal discussions on the possibility of effecting an amalgamation between the two centres had broken down earlier this year when Reeve Murphy could not get the support of his council to continue the talks.

New Wharf Built 'In Wrong Place'

Sidney's village commission chairman A. A. Cormack last night charged a new fisherman's wharf, planned for Shoal Harbor in the Sidney area, is being built in the wrong place.

Mr. Cormack was commenting on a federal government plan to build a $250,000 wharf in the Shoal Harbor area.

He said the wharf should be at the foot of Beacon Avenue, Sidney's main street, north of the present government wharf.

Tenders have already been called for the structure which, when completed, will have space for 70 boats.

"I don't feel there should be fish loading facilities on the dock," said Mr. Cormack. "It's too close to Rest Haven Hospital."

Even so, the village commission would not protest the government's decision to build the wharf in Shoal Harbor as the area was outside the commission's jurisdiction, he said.

Bea Buzzes Bright Bon Mot How Family Found Friend

STAFF NOTEBOOK By Ted Shackleford

BEA IS BACK: Every so often the Colonist's Salt Spring Island correspondent, Bea Hamilton, sends us a little vignette which doesn't really fit into regular news columns. A not-so-long-ago item she sent which colleague Peter Bruton published was about a small mouse in church. Remember? Well, here is one she sent us this week . . .

A man and his wife visited Salt Spring Island recently. They drove through the island and happened to notice a name on a mail box: H. Skuce.

"What an unusual name!" remarked the couple, and from then on it was H'Skuce me, or "Wonder what H. Skuce would think of that?" whenever any family faux pas turned up. This got to be a real byword with the humorous family. Then one day it happened. The manager of the department store in a local district met a man at the store door and introduced him to one of the clerks—our friend who had visited Salt Spring, no less. And the manager proceeded to drop a bomb right at the clerk's feet.

"This is Mr. Hubert Skuce from Salt Spring Island," he said.

The astonished clerk stared and said "Why, I know you!" And on being questioned, it turned out he didn't know Mr. Skuce at all, but he had to disclose the above story to the amusement of the real H. Skuce.

"I never thought I'd meet you! My wife will be astonished when I tell her I have met our H'Skuce," he said chuckling. And that happened in one of our local stores—just never know, do you? Wonder what H'Skuce that family will use now?

THANKS, PAL: Travelling salesman who travels the Island is still burning about the other day when he was driving like 80 to reach the Nanaimo ferry when he noticed a fellow travelling salesman hurrying on foot toward the same destination. So he stopped and picked up the pedestrian, being passed by five other ferry-bound cars in the meantime. When they drove up to the ferry the gates were closed just in front of them—no more space for cars. Even more frustrating was his passenger's comment—"Well, that's tough luck"—as he casually opened the car door and walked aboard the ferry.

WHAT INCONVENIENCE? Pilfying Phil Gaglardi's department has left one of his "Sorry for any inconvenience" signs on the highway to Swartz Bay, right alongside Patricia Bay airport, together with a sign limiting speed to 20 miles an hour. The road has been paved for weeks now and nobody we know of pays any attention to the speed limit.

Garden Notes

Treat for Eye, Tummy

By M. V. CHESNUT, FRHS

Most people are pleasantly surprised when they find a quince tree growing in the garden of the house they move into, but not many homeowners ever seem to think of buying and planting a quince. Yet this is about the most trouble-free of all the fruit trees.

True, the distinctive flavor of the quince isn't everybody's cup of tea, but a few quarters of quince in a batch of apple sauce or in a dish of stewed pears makes all the difference in the world to what would otherwise be a rather ordinary flavor, and of course quince jelly is a real delicacy with its honey-like quality. Over and above its utility value, though, the quince is about as ornamental as anything you could plant.

The tree lives to a ripe old age, making a drooping, rounded head which is most distinctive as a specimen tree on the lawn or near a pool. The foliage is similar to its cousin, the pear, but covered with a silvery down. The flowers, which are large and white, are borne singly and not in clusters like apples. It is the fruit, though, which is most unusual and attractive. It is shaped rather like a pear, and is at first covered thickly with a woolly down. This fuzz gradually thins out and disappears as the fruit matures, and the skin turns a lovely golden yellow, often with a slight russeting.

Throughout the life of the fruit there is a characteristic aroma which becomes stronger as the fruit ripens. It is a sweet, musty scent, yet with a sharp tang to it, difficult to describe but one that lingers in the memory of those who like it. The aroma is so strong and permeating the harvested fruits must always be stored in a room to themselves, for otherwise the apples and pears stored with them would take on a quince flavor.

The quince is one of the very few tree fruits which can be grown readily from slips. They are sometimes grafted, or more often, budded, but for economic reasons, and a cutting from a quince tree will take root quite nicely if just stuck in the ground. The trees are not very expensive, therefore, and you can buy a tree of Bourgeat, which is the best variety, from local nurseries for $3.50 to $5.00. For my money, any shapely tree which produces big, fragrant white blossoms and golden "apples of Hesperides" against a background of richly dark green leaves is worth a lot more than this.

For the first few years, pruning is done just to get the branches placed where you want them for grace and shapeliness, and in later years the winter pruning resolves itself into doing a little simple thinning, for the quince has a natural habit of making a lot of twiggy growth. In old trees which have not been pruned for some years, the branches will sometimes twine around one another, adding character to the gnarled and somewhat Japanese appearance. It is best to allow your tree to develop along its own lines, with just a little gentle persuasion to form a graceful and distinctive specimen.

The quince is about the last of the fruits to be picked, and should be allowed to hang on the tree until November at least, or until we have had two or three frosts hard enough to put an ice crust on the puddles in the garden. The fruit will still be hard when picked, and will keep up to about six weeks in store. They have a habit of ripening quite suddenly, though, and once they are fully mature, they must be used at once.

Fed Up with Frustration of Modern Life

Restless Band Seek Utopia

Socialism in the Sun

LONDON (UPI) — Twenty-five socialist-minded young people plan to set up housekeeping on a South Sea island to prove that a dream of Utopia can come true.

"We plan to stay on the island for the rest of our lives," said 19-year-old hospital worker Christine Forse, one of the six women who will make the trip.

Photographic printer Bernard Stanbury, 33, originated the idea of the share-and-share alike island farming community.

Stanbury said he and his group hope to find sun, security, romance, attention — and escape from the frustration of modern life.

There are no single women in the group, but there are six couples, and the rest are men. The average is 32.

The party hopes to leave early in the new year to settle on a nine-square-mile island off the west coast of Queensland, Australia. They are now negotiating to lease it from the Queensland government for $44,800.

Stanbury said they were trying this social experiment where "life can be led by people pulling the same way because life here is frustrating. I am fed up with it."

He said the community would be governed by majority vote with a president to conduct meetings. There will be no leader.

"But there will be some basic fundamental laws, which will take a 100 per cent vote to change," he said. For example, there will be no personal property, and no group religious activities.

"This does not mean we are atheists. In fact, none of us is an atheist. But we foresee the dangers that could come of majority and minority religious groups. It would be all right if we were all of the same religion, but we are not."

On the island there will be no currency, because everything will be shared.

The group will have to build homes and then start farming, producing crops for export as well as food.

Stanbury said he calculated "hundreds of thousands of people would like to do the same thing."

Hitchcock Horrors Harrowing

By SHEILAH GRAHAM

HOLLYWOOD (NANA) — Cary Grant saw a preview of Alfred Hitchcock's horror movie to end all horror films, The Birds, and practically ran screaming from the projection room, it was so frightening.

Marilyn Monroe's spectacular suicide cancelled the similar plans of another big, big star. "I could never top Marilyn's publicity," she is reported to have said. If it weren't so awful, it would be funny.

★ ★ ★

Tony Perkins and Melina Mercouri have a love scene in Phaedre where they both seem to be in their birthday suits. I saw this scene being shot and I wondered if it would pass the censors. To my astonishment, it has.

★ ★ ★

Elizabeth Taylor, if she signs for I Love Louisa, will bury five husbands in the course of the movie. The idea is for her to bury the most attractive men in Hollywood—like Cary Grant, Rock Hudson, Burt Lancaster. But—the one man Liz would like to bury, she blue-penciled from the list.

Kim Novak says she's in love with Richard Quine. They have known each other well for about five years. So, what's holding up the wedding? In a year or so Kim will be 30. She's still beautiful and it's incredible that she is still unmarried.

Joan Collins found a two-bedroom apartment for Anthony Newley in New York. She was at ringside for Tony's opening in Stop the World I Want to Get Off. If the show is a hit, he will get a divorce—and another marriage.

Broadway producer David Merrick was recently interviewed by a correspondent for Tass, Soviet news agency. He asked Merrick if he thought the theatre was best served under the capitalist system. "Of course," replied David. "A producer must have capital or he can't operate."

Peter Ustinov is battling the American distributors who want to delete a bit of business from his Billy Budd movie. For a change, this has nothing to do with sex. Too complicated to explain, but Peter is standing firm. He'll be in New York for the opening and I hope he brings Terence Stamp who plays the title role, and with some more good pictures could be another big star.

Two Girls Vetoed Colombo Plan

COLOMBO, Ceylon (UPI)—A 23-year-old Canadian girl left here yesterday for Vancouver, B.C., in compliance with a government decree ordering her to leave the country for violating the terms of her entry.

Sarah de Vloo, who taught school at Fort Chipewyan, on Lake Athabasca in Northern Alberta, was the second Canadian ordered out of Ceylon this summer, it was disclosed yesterday.

Alice Solochen, who also taught school at Fort Chipewyan, left Ceylon for similar reasons Sept. 21.

Miss de Vloo has charged that she was being ordered out of the country because she refused to go out with officials she denounced as "wolves."

"I've been asked to get out because I refused to go along with certain parliamentarians and high income men," she said, citing a member of parliament, a police officer and a senior civil servant.

The Ceylonese News said in an editorial that the "public will be as disgusted as the unfortunate Canadian girl at the unpardonable behavior of the members of parliament and high income men . . . for making her life miserable. . . ."

Miss de Vloo and Miss Solochen had previously worked in and toured Japan, Hong Kong, Saigon, Burma, Malaya and India before arriving here.

Green 'Disturbed'

OTTAWA (CP) — External Affairs Minister Green said yesterday he is "disturbed" by reports of two Canadian girls being asked to leave Ceylon because they declined to be seduced by senior officials of that country.

He said in a Commons reply to Paul Martin that the Canadian high commissioner in Ceylon has been asked to "do everything possible."

Bare Hands Breach The Berlin Barrier

BERLIN (Reuters)—West Berlin police have arrested a 31-year-old man who tried to tear down the Communist-built Berlin border wall with his bare hands.

They said the man had already torn an 18-inch hole in the concrete wall when he was taken into protective custody.

The wall was "very loosely built" at that spot, a police spokesman explained.

COURT CIRCULAR

Balmoral Castle, Sept. 28

By command of The Queen, the Lord Denham (Lord in Waiting) was present at London Airport this evening upon the departure of the President of Pakistan and took leave of His Excellency, on behalf of Her Majesty.

Kensington Palace, Sept. 28

The Princess Margaret, Countess of Snowdon, and The Earl of Snowdon, this morning visited Brathay Hall Centre, Ambleside.

In the afternoon, Her Royal Highness opened Abbot Hall Art Gallery, Kendal, and, with Lord Snowdon, toured the first Exhibition of the Lake District Art Gallery Trust.

Her Royal Highness and Lord Snowdon returned to London in an aircraft of The Queen's Flight.

Miss Fiona Myddelton and Major The Hon. Francis Legh were in attendance.

The Duke of Edinburgh, who is at Balmoral Castle with the Queen, will fly to Sandringham tomorrow and will be there for about a week before returning to Balmoral.

Viscountess Southwell gave birth to a son on September 27.

The Hon. Mrs. Patrick Maitland is postponing the dance arranged for her daughter Miss Olga Maitland on October 31.

Mrs. Raymond Lort-Phillips will be abroad until December 19. No letters will be forwarded.

Mother Flies from Paris To Attend Son's Wedding

* * *

In the early afternoon recently at Mount St. Peter's Roman Catholic Church in Nanaimo, Robin Elizabeth Hall, youngest daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Ernest Hall of Yellow Point, became the bride of Henri Edmond Hoerth-Paul of Victoria, fomerly of Paris.

Following the ceremony the couple greeted guests at a reception given at "Two Coves" the home of the bride's parents, where Mr. Garth Griffith of Vancouver gave the bride's toast.

The groom, who came to Victoria five years ago from France, is the adopted son of Mlle. Fernande Paul, who flew from Paris for the wedding.

Yellow and white flowers decorated the church for the service, officiated by Father Cunningham.

The bride chose an ivory shantung day-time dress, featuring a cummerbund at waist, leading to a pencil slim front panel skirt accented by box pleat folds to back interest. The classic bodice was designed with boat neckline and lily-point sleeves. Her bouffant veil was caught to a wreath of yellow flowers and she carried yellow rosebuds and white Ester Reed daisies.

Her only jewelry was double strand of heirloor pearls, the gift of the groom

Mrs. Michael Thomas of Victoria attended the bride in a brown and white print ensemble with cafe-au-lait accessories and yellow and white bouquet.

MR. AND MRS. HENRI EDMOND HOERTH-PAUL

Michael Thomas was best man and ushering were Michael Taylor of Victoria and the bride's brother-in-law, Thad LePas of Nanaimo.

The bride attended school in Ladysmith and has been active for many years in the Yellow Point Drama group. She has lived in Victoria for the past two years and had a lead role in "The Enchanted" a recent production of the Victoria Little Theatre group.

The couple now reside in Victoria.

Travel Troubles

Mlle. Fernande Paul had not seen her son, Henri, for over five years, but for business reasons was able to decide to make the trip only three days before the date set for the wedding. The travel agency to which she entrusted the job of making the necessary arrangements neglected to check the date on her passport, which she had last used for a trip to Majorca four years before. When she arrived at Orly Airport to board the plane, it was found that her passport had expired and she was not allowed to board the plane, and, at the same time she was told that 14 days would be required to obtain a new passport.

However, much hurrying and scurrying and enlisting the services of influential friends produced a new passport in 48 hours and the airline co-operated by transferring her reservation to the next available flight. But on landing at Winnipeg, the first North American stop, immigration officers found she had no vaccination certificate, another oversight of her travel agency, and for some moments she faced the prospect of being returned to France from there.

A kindly medico came to her assistance, however, and persuaded her to submit to vaccination on the spot, so that she could proceed to her destination on the strength of a Canadian certificate.

She landed in Victoria the night before the wedding, and althought she had spent 16 hours on the plane, she drove at once with her son to Yellow Point, arriving there at three o'clock in the morning.

After only three days on the Coast, she flew back to Paris, full of appreciation of the lovely coastal scenery, and regret at having to leave it and her new family so soon.

Married in Ottawa

Lieut. Michel Vanier, 21-year-old son of Governor-General and Mme. Vanier, was married to Jovette Letourneau, 20, in a private ceremony at Rideau Hall, Ottawa, Sept. 29. The bride was the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Marcel Letourneau of Quebec City.—(CP Photo)

Your Problems

By Ann Landers

Dear Ann Landers: My wife is a fine person. She graduated from Radcliffe and reads nothing but high-class magazines like Harper's and Saturday Review. She knows all about Melville and Goethe but when it comes to common sense our 12-year-old has more than her mother.

My wife can tell you the date of the Pelopennesian Wars but she can't remember where she put the house-keys or the baseball tickets.

Last week she got to yakking on the telephone and forgot the bath water was running. The tub overflowed and ruined the carpeting in our bedroom.

Saturday she was supposed to pick up our two sons at the movie at 5 o'clock. She forgot which movie they went to. She drove around town for 40 minutes and then returned without them. An hour later the kids came home exhausted. They had walked.

What can I do about a wife like this? — ROPE'S END FATHER.

Dear R. E. Dad: Train the kids to watch out for themselves. Impress on the 12-year-old the necessity of being a "little mother." Without giving the children the idea that Mom is the village idiot. Suggest they not depend on her for too many practical things. Tell them "Mom is busy and has a lot on her mind."

* * *

Dear Ann Landers: To put it in your language, I'm a four-time loser. I know this sounds terrible but I'm really quite a fine person and not nearly as shopworn as my history might suggest.

I'm under 30 years of age, have had two years of college and am considered pleasant to look at. I'll spare you the details of my four flops because I don't have the time and you don't have the space.

The present problem is this: When I go out with a man I feel honor-bound to tell him something of my past. The minute I mention four marital failures I'm dropped as if I had announced I have galloping Chinese rot.

Do you feel I should keep quiet about my past, at least until the fellow gets to know me better? Or should I come right out with the glad-tidings on first meeting?—OPAL.

Dear Opal: A woman is not obligated to give a man the names and numbers of all the players on the first meeting. You should make it clear, however, that you have been married.

I don't feel it would be dishonest if you reserved the "details" until you became better acquainted.

J. K. Nesbitt To Address Weavers

The opening item at the Victoria Hand Weavers' Guild meeting in the Art Gallery was a delightful and instructive set of slides from the California Weavers' Guild. Mrs. S. Pickles pointed out the interesting points of each picture.

Mrs. Anstey, president, welcomed several new members.

The program convener reported that a complete program for the year had been arranged. This they had printed as a Year Book, that also includes the members of the executive and names and addresses of all members. The first program is to be a talk by historian Mr. J. K. Nesbitt, on "The Life and Times of Mrs. D. Harris." There will also be a display of weaving from Mrs. Allan of the Vancouver Guild.

The librarian reported the arrival of the new magazines.

It was decided to hold study groups on the second Tuesday, commencing Oct. 9. The first project will be a lace sampler.

Couple Married At Centennial

At a double ring ceremony in Centennial United Church, recently, Marilyn Mobey and Mr. Frank Worthington were united in marriage. Rev. T. G. Griffiths officiated for the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. H. A. Mobey, Quadra Street and the son of Mr. and Mrs. R. Worthington, 100 Mile House.

Given in marriage by her father the fair-haired bride was lovely in her classic gown of lace and French taffeta. A bow accented the drop waistline at the back. Her veil was held by a sequin crown and she carried red roses and stephanotis.

Miss Beverley Clifford, the bride's cousin, was maid of honor and Miss Jackie Poulton, bridesmaid, wore identical ballerina length gowns of pale yellow chiffon over taffeta. They had toning floral headpieces and carried pink roses and white feathered carnations.

Flower girl was the bride's sister, Susan Mobey, who was dressed in pale pink chiffon over taffeta.

Mr. Jack Fauria was best man and Mr. Ralph Schatz and Mr. Bob Mahan were ushers. During the signing of the registar, Mr. S. Jewkes, the bride's uncle, sang "Because."

The reception following was held in Lougheed's Banquet Hall. Mr. Cecil Clifford, the bride's uncle, proposed the toast.

For her honeymoon trip, the new Mrs. Worthington, donned a two-piece spice brown suit with beige accessories and pale yellow rosebud corsage. On their return the young couple will reside in Victoria.

TV TALK

By JIM TAYLOR

All of today's listings are printed under the assumption that there is no space shot today.

If there is, all bets are off and you take your chanches on daytime viewing, as all networks will be covering the blast.

Sports fans who consider today's Los Angeles-San Francisco baseball playoff game more important than the space shot are advised to cross all fingers and hope astronaut Walter Schierra sleeps in or something.

"During the Fall TV season, it's a mistake to ask her 'What's new'?"

Highlights

7:30 p.m.—Andy Williams, who produced a show full of promise his first try, returns for week 2, along with the wonderful Christie Minstrels—8.

8:30—Showdown in the Congo is the CBS Reports presentation—7.

9:30—Going My Way, debut of a new hour-long series with Gene Kelly in the role created by Bing Crosby — 4.

Wednesday's Movies

9:30 a.m.—Illegal (1955 drama), Edward G. Robinson—4.

3:00 p.m.—Dr. Monica (1934 mystery), Warren William—11.

HALF THE WEIGHT

Just 24 pounds—half the weight of other chairs—Wheel Chair as light as a portable typewriter. Try one, and you'll see at once how much easier it is to carry and use. (So will your travelling companion.) But don't let its feather weight fool you. Crafted of high-strength aluminum and special-alloy aircraft tubing, it's as rugged as they come. It offers fingertip folding to 10", triple-chrome plating, aluminum alloy wheels, precision ball bearings, polished and anodized aluminum parts, Dacron upholstery. It's the chair for people who want to go places and do things—like you. SEE IT TODAY.

Winning Contract

When three no trump is a possible contract, a doubleton ace opposite a doubleton queen is an excessively irritating combination. It is probably necessary for the right hand to play no trump, but no bidding system yet devised will reveal which opponent holds the vital king. But in today's deal, the defence played this suit at the third trick, and declarer now knew where the king would be.

♣ Q 4

The bidding:

South	West	North	East
1 ♠	Pass	2 ♡	Pass
2 ♠	Pass	4 ♠	All pass

Opening lead: ♢ K

North has a book raise of one spade to three spades, but his actual choice of two hearts, to be followed by four spades, is perhaps a little better. If South is strong, he can try for a slam with some knowledge of North's distribution. After an immediate spade raise, South could hardly visualize North's heart length. As it happened, either bid would have led to the same result, for South had not the slightest desire to try for a slam.

West's lead of the diamond king held and he continued with the jack which East overtook to return the club three. It was clear to South that West must have the club king, for if East had that card, he would have allowed West to win the second diamond and shift to a club.

South therefore did not waste a useful card by putting up his club queen for slaughter. He took the club ace, drew trumps and played two top hearts. A diamond ruff, followed by dummy's club forced West to win and concede a ruff and sluff. South's losing heart thus disappeared, and the contract was made.

Had East been more alert, he would have overtaken the first diamond and returned the club. He should have seen that a club trick was needed, and the immediate shift would have given declarer no chance to bring off the neat strip play which he actually achieved.

Secret Ties Linked Murderer, Lawyer

LONDON (AP) — Nemone Lethbridge, a beautiful woman lawyer kept her marriage secret for three years. Her husband is a convicted murderer, Irish-born James O'Connor.

O'Connor, 44, is 14 years older than his wife. In 1942, he was arrested at the jail gates after serving nine months for stealing and was charged with murder of a London man.

He was found guilty and sentenced to be hanged. At the last moment he was reprieved and sent to Dartmoor Prison.

O'Connor served 10 years and was released in 1952.

They met in London pub, recalled O'Connor Sunday. Miss Lethbridge was collecting facts for a crime book.

A year later, in August, 1959, they slipped away to Dublin to marry. Only their closest friends and relatives were told.

SECRET ROMANCE

O'Connor said they kept their romance secret for the sake of Miss Lethbridge's career.

Petite and brunette, she has appeared in a number of murder trials. Now she is helping her husband try to clear his name. He has always claimed he is innocent.

Canada Gives Refugee Aid

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — A vocational training centre for Palestine refugees, built in Lebanon by the UN relief and works agency, has been opened here.

The centre, which will accommodate 396 trainees, was built and equipped with world refugee year contributions from Canada, on a site donated by Kamal Jumblatt, now Lebanon's minister of interior.

Counter-Charges Sought by IWA

PORT ALBERNI — Counter charges against MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. will be laid by Local 1-85 IWA if permission is granted by the Labor Relations Board.

The company, which applied to the board for permission to charge President Walter Allen and 48 boom men of the local, in connection with what was termed an "illegal strike," will have lockout charges filed against it if the approval of the board is granted, Maurice Corbell, financial secretary of the local, announced Tuesday.

He announced also the local has made application for a hearing before the labor relations board on the company's application for permission to prosecute.

Alberni Union Offered Aid

ALBERNI—The B.C. Federation of Labor has applied to the provincial labor relations board for permission to appear in support of the International Woodworkers of America in any hearings relating to the MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. operation at Alberni.

Major Step Made

Building Code Uniform Soon?

Greater Victoria yesterday took a major step toward a uniform building code when the intermunicipal committee endorsed a report from a joint technical committee.

The committee, headed by city planner Roderick Clack, met weekly for eight months before reaching a unanimous decision to recommend adoption of the national building code—with some minor changes—as the local standard.

Mr. Clack told the intermunicipal committee the major differences between the suggested new code and the ones now in effect in individual municipalities was in the matter of performance standards.

Instead of stipulating size and type of materials, the proposed new code will simply require, for example, a wall capable of withstanding fire for two hours, said Mr. Clack. This allows introduction of new materials which meet standards.

To keep up with amendments which will crop up from time to time, the intermunicipal committee recommended the technical group be made permanent.

Air Engine Mystery Nearing Solution?

The mystery surrounding a battered and rusty aircraft engine dredged up by the deep sea dragger Elwin S. between Albert Head and William Head may soon be solved.

Air engineers from the Naval Utility Squadron at Patricia Bay have identified the engine as a Wright Cyclone, used by a number of military as well as commercial aircraft, a Navy spokesman told the Colonist last night.

They have taken note of a number on the engine, which may help in identification.

Rescue Co-Ordination Centre, RCAF, Vancouver, to date has not found any record of a crash in this area in which an aircraft with such an engine was involved.

Various suggestions have been put forward as to the identity of the aircraft. Crashes referred to involved a Fleet Canuck, a Spitfire, and a navy plane from HMS Warspite.

None of these planes would have been fitted with this type of engine.

'Friends' Need Donors

Money and clothing are urgently needed by thousands of Algerian refugees made homeless by long periods of war and deprivation, the service committee of the Society of Friends said today.

The society is again collecting money, clothing and blankets for the relief of these refugees, who will need extra provisions during the coming winter.

It is especially necessary that milk stations for the children be maintained. Contributions of clothing and blankets should be sent to the Friends Meeting House, 1831 Fern, and money will be received by I. M. Vallance, local relief treasurer.

For Gulf Islands

New Ferry Job Goes to Mainland

Acceptance of a $2,110,976 Burrard Drydock bid for construction of a B.C. government ferry to serve the Gulf Islands was announced yesterday by Recreation Minister Westwood.

The new ferry, to be completed not later than June 30 next year, will go into service between the Gulf Islands and provide a direct link with the lower mainland.

Yarrows Ltd. of Victoria submitted the only other bid —$2,127,213.

The ferry will have an overall length of 236 feet and will carry 400 passengers and 40 cars. It will draw 12 feet of water and travel at 16 knots.

Outwardly the design will be similar to that of the $3,700,000 larger ferries built by the B.C. Toll Authority which carry 1,000 passengers and 120 cars.

The new vessel will ply between Long Harbor on the east side of Salt Spring Island to Tsawwassen on the mainland. Toll authority officials have not announced at what frequency or at which islands it will call in the remainder of the Gulf Island group.

Confidence Vote

Socreds Isolated In Test

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Progressive Conservative Government won its first crucial vote in the Commons Tuesday night when a Social Credit motion of non-confidence was defeated 233 to 30.

Only the Social Credit group supported the motion, which would have overthrown the government if it had carried. It was worded in such a way, however, that neither the Liberals nor New Democrats could have backed it.

In a rare display of interest, every MP was in his seat for the voting. The 115 Conservatives got support from 100 Liberals and 18 NDP members in opposing the motion.

MAKES APPEAL

Earlier Tuesday in the throne speech debate, Prime Minister Diefenbaker made an appeal for defeat of a Liberal non-confidence motion due to be voted on Thursday night.

Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, indicated such support will be supplied by his party. He spoke while moving his party's version of non-confidence, which was greeted by laughter from Conservatives, Liberals and the NDP.

THE MOTION

"We repectfully affirm to Your Excellency that Your Excellency's advisers, having failed to pursue economic and financial policies based on Social Credit principles designed to balance the economy and relieve the burden of public debt and public debt charges, thus assuring Canadians a standard of life compatible with this nation's capacity to produce, do not possess the confidence of this House."

NO NATIONAL CRISIS

Mr. Thompson said his group is determined to follow "the role of statesmanship" rather than bring on a "national crisis."

Mr. Diefenbaker earlier asserted that the economy was on the "up and up" during the election campaign and is still "on the upsurge."

SLANGING MATCH

In a three-hour and 15-minute speech punctuated by a slanging match with Mr. Pearson, he denied the Liberal chieftain's charge that the government deceitfully concealed the foreign exchange crisis from the Canadian public during the campaign leading to the June 18 election.

DEFENDS STAND

The government's action of June 24 was "not abnormal." It had done "legally in 1962 what they (the Liberals) did illegally in 1947."

Mr. Diefenbaker said intensification of the drain on Canada's foreign exchange fund started last June 15.

Podres Vs. Marichal

SAN FRANCISCO — The entire National League baseball pennant fight, which started 163 games ago last April, has dwindled to a sudden-death contest in Candlestick Park here this afternoon. Winner gets to play New York Yankees in the World Series that starts Thursday.

Los Angeles Dodgers tied their playoff series with San Francisco Giants in an 8-7 thriller yesterday that lasted a record four hours, 18 minutes. (See Page 8.)

Dodger southpaw Johnny Podres (15-13) has been picked to oppose northpaw Juan Marichal (18-11) today.

Schirra Ready

Europe May Watch U.S. Space Launching

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. entered the final phases of preparation for a six-orbit journey around the earth Tuesday and there was a possibility that much of Europe might witness the launching on television.

Improving weather conditions in the Atlantic and Pacific areas where the Mercury capsule might come down increased the chances that the spacecraft might be fired into orbit some time after 5 a.m. PDT.

* * *

If the launching occurs between 5:45 and 6:15 a.m., the Telstar communications satellite will be within range so that live coverage of the liftoff could be sent almost instantaneously to TV viewers in 17 countries of the Eurovision network in Europe.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said conferences are also under way in Paris leading to possible hookup with the nine Soviet bloc countries of Europe's Intervision network.

* * *

The plan calls for an eight-minute Telstar transmission to Europe. If the launch comes during that period, NASA hopes to be able to show Europe the last two to four minutes of pre-launch activity and the four-minute climb until the launching rocket is out of sight.

But NASA emphasized that there would be no juggling of launch times to fit into the Telstar schedule.

* * *

The space agency said the astronaut, his backup pilot, Leroy Gordon Cooper, his spacecraft and his Atlas rocket all appear to be in good condition for flight, and have completed the first part of a split countdown without a hitch.

The major concern has been the approach of tropical storm Daisy toward the areas 375 miles south of Bermuda where Schirra would land if his flight ended after two orbits. However, the storm was moving so slowly that it may not reach the area in time to give trouble.

Smallpox Shots For All?

By TERRY HAMMOND

Vancouver Island and lower mainland residents will know before the end of the week whether or not they will have to be vaccinated against smallpox.

Deputy health minister Dr. J. A. Taylor said last night a telephone call is expected "within a very few days" from Ottawa, which will advise whether or not a 25-year-old Thailand student at the University of British Columbia has the disease.

ON SAME PLANE

Already vaccinated in the Victoria area are five people who were in contact with a man who travelled to B.C. on the same plane with the student early last month.

Health officials yesterday opened a smallpox immunization clinic on the UBC campus following a roundup of students who had been in contact with student Kaneung Watanachai.

OTTAWA DIAGNOSE

If federal virologists at Ottawa diagnose the student as a smallpox victim from blood samples flown to the east, Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island residents should be vaccinated, said Dr. Taylor.

Dr. Taylor said the Island would have to be included because of large-scale travel between here and Vancouver and more particularly because of the number of UBC students who come over on weekends.

ONLY MILD CASE

Although the student might only have a mild case of smallpox, because of having been immunized before leaving Thailand, he could still pass it on to others who have not been vaccinated or whose immunization has worn off.

An emergency call for more smallpox vaccine was issued by the B.C. health department yesterday, and Connaught Laboratories in Toronto is expected to come up with enough to immunize 50,000 to 60,000 people.

WERE NOT SURE

Health authorities were not sure where they would get enough additional vaccine to immunize 500,000 people if the need arises, but Dr. Taylor thought manufacturers could pool stocks and probably meet the requirement.

Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said the possible smallpox contact who came here left last Sunday bound for London, U.K. health authorities have been alerted to intercept him.

NAME WITHHELD

Dr. Whitbread said he couldn't divulge the man's name and felt it was not necessary to do so in order to protect other possible contacts.

The man stayed in North Saanich, and Dr. Whitbread believes the five people immunized represent all he was in contact with.

He and all other passengers of the CPA plane which brought the Thailand student to Victoria were already under surveillance.

First Test Of Blood Negative

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first of three tests on a blood sample of a University of British Columbia student showed no sign of smallpox.

But Dr. J. D. Gayton, Vancouver medical health officer, said Tuesday night two more tests are needed before it can be said definitely that Kaneung Watanachai is not suffering from the disease.

5,000 Get Shots

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia medical authorities vaccinated 4,000 students and faculty and staff members in the space of four hours Tuesday and appeared to have the smallpox scare at the university well under control.

NEARLY 5,000

Tuesday's mass immunization, carried out on a production-line basis by the university's free health service, brought to nearly 5,000 the number vaccinated since a suspected smallpox case was discovered Monday. The university's total enrolment is 13,500.

IN ISOLATION

Kaneung Watanachai, 25, a Colombo Plan student from Bangkok, is in isolation at Vancouver General Hospital with an unidentified skin infection. Final results of tests on his condition are expected to be known this week.

Students lined up five deep in the corridors of the university's Westbrook building Tuesday to receive their vaccinations.

FAIRLY CERTAIN

The university said it is now fairly certain everyone who had been in contact with Watanachai has been vaccinated. However, the university health service was prepared to continue the program today for any who knew they had been contacts.

FAST ACTION

A university spokesman said the fact the university's free health service for its students is the largest and most extensive in the Commonwealth made it possible to take fast action after the suspected case was discovered.

Revenge Behind Slaying?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sidney Kovish, 28, longshoreman and sometime cowboy, was fatally wounded Tuesday night when shot in the chest at close range by a .303-calibre rifle held by an apparently intoxicated assailant.

Police, who later arrested a suspect in the shooting, had scoured the downtown area looking for a well-dressed man who witnesses said fired after saying to Kovish: "I told you I'd get you."

GRAIN DOCK JOB

Kovish, a bachelor who took two months off each summer to ride in rodeos in Canada and the U.S., was walking to his car after finishing work at a grain dock when the man stepped out of a late-model luxury car and went over to Kovish.

He fired two shots. The second shattered Kovish's hand when he tried to protect himself.

Camping in Hope Park

Sons Register 100 Children As School Bursts at Seams

HOPE (CP) — The number of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors camped in a municipal park here Tuesday swelled to 1,200, and sect spokesmen said the total was expected to go as high as 1,600. (See Pages 5, 10.)

About 100 children from the camp were registered in Coquihalla Elementary School here.

School board chairman George Brown said facilities already were overtaxed and the school would have to go on shifts.

Mrs. Fanny Storgoff, a spokesman for the Doukhobors, said they are determined to continue to Agassiz.

90-Day Holiday Won by Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — After June, 1964, about 200 of the 400 workers at American Can Co. and Continental Can Co. plants here will be entitled to three months vacation every five years.

The United Steelworkers of America said Tuesday the clause is a major breakthrough. It applies only to employees who have been with the companies for 15 years or more.

It is contained in a contract negotiated on a North American basis.

Russia Asked To Avoid High Blasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States formally notified the Soviet Union Tuesday of the impending rocket flight of astronaut Walter M. Schirra and indicated hope that the Russians will avoid high-altitude nuclear explosions which might hamper the operation.

The U.S. action was similar to one the Soviet government took in mid-August when two Russian spacemen were orbited and Moscow notified Washington with a suggestion that the U.S. be careful about where it fired its nuclear test shots while the men were up.

British Trains Halted

LONDON (Reuters) — Rail traffic across Britain ground to a halt shortly after midnight Tuesday night as the country's railroad workers went out on a 24-hour strike.

CAMP BY DESKS

London businessmen and office workers camped beside their desks overnight after the railroad union leaders decided to go ahead with the strike following the collapse of last-chance peace talks called to avert the strike.

Offices, canteens and board rooms all became bedrooms as essential staff brought out mattresses and blankets.

HOTELS JAMMED

Hotels were jammed as the strike hit London's 1,250,000 commuters.

Many plan to switch to cars, but roads leading into the capital from the suburbs are barely adequate to handle the normal commuter travel.

'Reds First in Nuclear Race'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. Edward Teller, the nuclear physicist, said Tuesday recent U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific have "not been quite satisfactory" and added:

"It is my guess, and it is only a guess, that the Russians are ahead of us in the nuclear race today."

Teller based his "guess" upon Russia's past record of progress in nuclear development and upon results of the recent U.S. tests.

The reason, he said, was that during the U.S. moratorium on testing, "we were not allowed to make thorough preparations for the eventuality that we would have to resume testing."

As a result, progress has been "less than it could have been."

However, he said the tests have shown that the weight of nuclear payloads may be reduced. The tests have afforded "additional assurance" that if the U.S. was attacked, it would have the ability to strike back, Teller said.

He said the tests were further valuable in experimenting with use of nuclear weapons as an aerial defence.

U.S. Ends Test Break

HONOLULU (AP) — The U.S. resumed nuclear testing in the Pacific Tuesday after a two-month recess.

The device packed power equivalent to between 20,000 and 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Political Prisoner —Walker

SPRINGIELD, Mo. (UPI)—Former army general Edwin Walker, charging he is being held as a "political prisoner," was ordered Tuesday to undergo psychiatric examination at the U.S. hospital for federal prisoners.

Attorneys for Walker, arrested on Monday for his part in the University of Mississippi integration crisis, have told the former general to give prison officials and doctors only name, rank and serial number.

Time for Purge

Barnett Granted 10-Day Reprieve

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett Tuesday won a 10-day reprieve from federal punishment for his vain opposition to Negro James H. Meredith's enrolment at the University of Mississippi. The justice department suggested the delay. (See Page 3.)

Instead of sending Barnett to prison or fining him on the spot, a federal appeals court gave him a form of probation until Oct. 12—apparently a test of his willingness to accept fully Meredith's integration into previously all-white student ranks.

Twice last week, Barnett personally blocked Meredith's admission to the University. But in the face of federal troop intervention, the governor made

JAMES MEREDITH

By RELMAN MORIN

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—James H. Meredith, sitting on an iron cot in a bare dormitory room, said Tuesday he considers his enrolment in the University of Mississippi to be "more for America than it is for me."

Meredith is the first Negro knowingly admitted as a student in the university's 114-year history.

* * *

In an interview, he showed no visible signs of nervousness or apprehension after the explosive riot that swept the university campus after his arrival Sunday night.

Meredith said quietly:

"I hope now the situation gets back to normal as soon as possible so that the students can continue their studies normally. That's what I want more than anything else now."

* * *

This was his second day to attend classes. He was escorted by federal Marshal James McShane to an hour's class in American colonial history. His second class was in political science.

He took a seat toward the back of the room. Two other male students sat a little farther back. None of the seats directly adjoining his was occupied.

A crowd, estimated by McShane at about 40, had gathered in front of the building when Meredith emerged.

* * *

However, he said in the interview that in the classes a number of students have greeted him, saying "hello" or "good morning."

He added:

"I haven't seen any students in class who appeared to be unfriendly."

After his first day in classes Monday, McShane said there had been no reaction from white classmates.

* * *

But a reliable campus source said that a co-ed burst into tears and sprinted from the room when Meredith entered.

"I can't stand it any more. This is enough and I am leaving," she shouted as she fled.

Meredith indicated emphatically Tuesday that he intends to remain in the university until he has his degree.

Causeway

New Wall Solves All

Victoria could solve its Causeway congestion problems at one stroke and likely get the federal and provincial governments to share total costs, Mayor R. B. Wilson said yesterday.

The mayor suggested a long-range solution to growing traffic problems in the area would be to build a new causeway wall about 30 feet behind the present wall.

ADD TWO LANES

This would make it possible, he said, to add two more lanes of traffic, possibly one to carry heavy truck traffic from Wharf Street and the other to provide parking for sightseers.

"This would be expensive to carry out, but it is in the interest of all levels of government to participate in such a scheme," Mayor Wilson added.

HEARD REPORT

Earlier the city public works committee heard a report from the federal public works department the foundations of the present Causeway wall, which will remain quite safe if left alone, would be in danger of collapse if any dredging was carried out in the Inner Harbor.

LOCAL PROJECT

While hinting it would be willing to contribute toward cost of the dredging operation when it is eventually carried out, the Ottawa letter said strengthening of the Causeway wall was a local project.

The only hope of federal assistance, it added, lay in winter works grants.

"I'm not so sure about that," said committee chairman Ald. Geoffrey Edgelow. "Perhaps one of the reasons for the bad foundation is the pounding of heavy trucks passing by day after day as they head for the federal docks at Ogden Point."

Ald. A. W. Toone said the Inner Harbor is in a "deplorable state" and should be dredged immediately if small craft are to continue to come to Victoria.

The committee decided to feel out possibility of contributions toward the project by Capital Improvement District Commission and the federal government.

IWA Plans to Lay Counter-Charges

PORT ALBERNI — Counter charges against MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Co. Ltd. will be laid by Local 1-85 IWA if permission is granted by the Labor Relations Board.

The company, which applied to the board for permission to charge President Walter Allen and 48 boom men of the local, in connection with what was termed an "illegal strike," will have lockout charges filed against it if the approval of the board is granted. Maurice Corbell, financial secretary of the local, announced Tuesday.

Westwood Pledges Quick Work For New Parksite

PORT ALBERNI — Recreation Minister Westwood has renewed his personal assurance there will be no unnecessary delay after negotiations are completed to acquire China Creek Estuary for development as a provincial park.

Guest speaker at a Chamber of Commerce meeting, Mr. Westwood heard expressions of disappointment when he said he could give no definite date for the development.

NO AGREEMENT

Mr. Westwood said agreement had not yet been reached with MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. for acquisition of the land. He said six parcels are involved in negotiations.

He declined to name the areas other than the one at China Creek and property held by Mac-Powell near Sproat Lake where it is planned to develop 40 or 50 campsites.

PROVISION MADE

Chamber president Bill Beckingham suggested provision had been made in forest management legislation to permit development for other purposes of land held by the forest industry firms.

He said it appeared the firms considered the land valuable when attempts were made to acquire it for other purposes but of little value when taxation was to be considered.

"Why can't the land be expropriated as the B.C. Electric was?" Harold Warren asked. Mr. Westwood did not reply.

Turkeys Cost More

Mrs. Housewife will pay five to seven cents more per pound for her frozen turkey in Victoria this Thanksgiving than she did last year.

She'll pay quite a bit more than that if she buys a New York dressed bird, freshly killed and with head and feet still attached. Selling point here is that it's a mature bird full of flavor.

Supermarket managers in Greater Victoria declined to quote actual prices on the grounds competition my force prices down at the last minute.

The consumer can expect to pay five to seven cents more per pound than last year because there is a shortage of turkeys on the Canadian market, said Maurice Randall, poultry officer for the department of agriculture.

Crump Tells Why Ferries Must Stop

NANAIMO — Nanaimo and district residents who sent a 14-foot-long telegram to President N. C. Crump of the CPR, asking retention of the company's passenger vessels on the Vancouver service, received an answer Monday.

In it Mr. Crump reiterated the company's decision to abandon the service, provided an insight into the circumstances which caused the decision and told the citizens of Nanaimo a few home truths.

SHARE VIEWS

"While I might share your views," he said, "concerning the sentimental aspects of the service heretofore provided by the Princess of Nanaimo, this is little assistance in meeting the inescapable costs of providing the service . . .

"It is unfortunate that the vast majority of the population . . . did not make their preferences known through their patronage during past months and years, in which case the present situation might not have arisen.

HEAVY LOSSES

"The whole matter has been given the fullest consideration, but the inescapable conclusion is that continuation of the service would be bound to incur heavy and increasing losses, as well as detracting from the economic health of the government ferry service.

"Reluctant as I am to see such a fine ship as the Princess of Nanaimo withdrawn from the service, I must regretfully inform you the situation leaves no other practical alternative."

Appeal Needs Volunteers In Nanaimo

NANAIMO — Tim Odell, chairman of the United Appeal campaign, is asking for volunteers for house-to-house collections, to start at the middle of the month.

Hundreds of helpers will be needed and volunteers are asked to call SK 3-4671 to register with the campaign headquarters.

Alberni Flying Club Seeks Aid for Port

ALBERNI — Public support of a campaign for a modern airport is being sought by Alberni Flying Club which plans a meeting Friday at 8 p.m. in Somass Legion Hall.

Alberni council delegated Ald. George Dunbar to attend on behalf of the city.

The organization has been working for some years for a permanent, modern airport, with sufficient facilities not only for local owner-pilots and established airlines, but also for air tourists who visit the area.

Representatives of the department of national defence, department of transport, city councils and all service clubs of the district have been invited to attend.

Combat Sewer Vandals Alberni Mayor Urges

ALBERNI—Alberni citizens have been asked by Mayor Fred Bishop to help combat vandalism on the city's current sewer installation project.

He told council contractors had reported more trouble here than in any but one of the many other communities in which they had undertaken similar projects.

He said it had taken several men three hours to clean debris from a newly-dug trench before work could be resumed.

Council suggested police be asked to keep watch on the project and citizens should report any acts of vandalism they witness.

During the meeting, council introduced an "hypothecation bylaw" which will permit the borrowing of $525,000 from the Bank of Montreal pending sale of the sewer debentures. Also introduced were several sewer easement bylaws.

Saanich Vote Will Fix Fate of Merger Study

What a December referendum in Saanich will actually decide is whether voters want study of Victoria-Saanich amalgamation to go ahead, says a Victoria Chamber of Commerce committee.

A statement released last night by Richard Bower, chairman of the chamber amalgamation committee, said: "It has become evident to the committee that there is little hope of re-instituting the Victoria-Saanich municipal amalgamation study until the Saanich amalgamation referendum is held in December.

WAY THEN OPEN

"If, at that time the referendum achieves an affirmative vote, as it is to be hoped it will, the way would then be open to the two municipalities to continue their negotiations with the object of presenting their councils and their electors with the full facts and figures necessary to judge whether or not amalgamation is desirable."

It is expected Saanich voters will mark in December a ballot asking simply whether they favor amalgamation with Victoria.

ONLY BYLAWS

But, said Mr. Bower, elaborating on the statement, amalgamation could not be brought about by such a referendum but only by bylaws in each of Victoria and Saanich, approved by 50 per cent of the property-owning voters of each municipality.

"Whatever it says on the ballot," voters will be deciding whether they want the study to continue, he said.

REOPEN STUDY

The statement said both Mayor R. B. Wilson of Victoria and Reeve Stanley Murphy of Saanich have said they personally are willing to reopen a joint study of amalgamation.

Informal discussions on the possibility of effecting an amalgamation between the two centres had broken down earlier this year when Reeve Murphy could not get the support of his council to continue the talks.

Wealthy PTA Dishes Out $20 Per Class

NANAIMO—The East Wellington Mountain View school PTA found itself at Monday night's meeting in such excellent financial health it was able to give each teacher in the school $20 to be spent as she wished for her class.

The school's new classroom has been named after Mrs. Ruth Thorpe, for many years secretary-treasurer of the school board.

WINS $25

The PTA was also enriched by $25, presented by the Nanaimo and District Credit Union in recognition of PTA co-operation in operating a credit union branch at the school last year.

Bea Buzzes Bright Bon Mot How Family Found Friend

STAFF NOTEBOOK
By Ted Shackleford

BEA IS BACK: Every so often the Colonist's Salt Spring Island correspondent, Bea Hamilton, sends us a little vignette which doesn't really fit into regular news columns. A not-so-long-ago item she sent which colleague Peter Bruton published was about a small mouse in church. Remember? Well, here is one she sent us this week . . .

A man and his wife visited Salt Spring Island recently. They drove through the island and happened to notice a name on a mail box: H. Skuce.

"What an unusual name!" remarked the couple, and from then on it was H'Skuce me, or "Wonder what H. Skuce would think of that?" whenever any family faux pas turned up. This got to be a real byword with the humorous family. Then one day it happened. The manager of the department store in a local district met a man at the store door and introduced him to one of the clerks—our friend who had visited Salt Spring, no less. And the manager proceeded to drop a bomb right at the clerk's feet.

"This is Mr. Hubert Skuce from Salt Spring Island," he said.

The astonished clerk stared and said "Why, I know you!" And on being questioned, it turned out he didn't know Mr. Skuce at all, but he had to disclose the above story to the amusement of the real H. Skuce.

"I never thought I'd meet you! My wife will be astonished when I tell her I have met our H'Skuce," he said chuckling. And that happened in one of our local stores just never know, do you? Wonder what H'Skuce that family will use now?

THANKS, PAL: Travelling salesman who travels the Island is still burning about the other day when he was driving like mad to reach the Nanaimo ferry when he noticed a fellow travelling salesman hurrying on foot toward the same destination. So he stopped and picked up the pedestrian, being passed by five other ferry-bound cars in the meantime. When they drove up to the ferry the gates were closed just in front of them—no more space for cars. Even more frustrating was his passenger's comment—"Well, that's tough luck"—as he casually opened the car door and walked aboard the ferry.

WHAT INCONVENIENCE? Pitying Phil Gagliardi's department has left one of his "Sorry for any inconvenience" signs on the highway to Swartz Bay, right alongside Patricia Bay airport, together with a sign limiting speed to 20 miles an hour. The road has been paved for weeks now and nobody we know of pays any attention to the speed limit.

New Wharf Built 'In Wrong Place'

Sidney's village commission chairman A. A. Cormack last night charged a new fisher Shoal Harbor in the Sidney area, is being built in the wrong place.

Mr. Cormack was commenting on a federal government plan to build a $250,000 wharf in the Shoal Harbor area.

He said the wharf should be at the foot of Beacon Avenue, Sidney's main street, north of the present government wharf.

Tenders have already been called for the structure which, when completed, will have space for 70 boats.

"I don't feel there should be fish loading facilities on the dock," said Mr. Cormack. "It's too close to Rest Haven Hospital."

Even so, the village commission would not protest the government's decision to build the wharf in Shoal Harbor as the area was outside the commission's jurisdiction, he said.

Search Continues For Lost Airman

HOLBERG—A search continued near here Tuesday for a missing airman now identified as LAC R. J. O'Bonsawin, formerly of Sudbury, Ont.

O'Bonsawin left the RCAF station at 11 a.m. Sunday to investigate a road washout. He was last seen walking along the road beside the Goodspeed River.

Fund to Give Yule Hampers

DUNCAN — The Cowichan Christmas Cheer Fund, in the hands of the Cowichan Council of Fraternal Organizations, will serve all eligible people living in the Cowichan school district with hampers instead of vouchers as last year. The committee, including 10 organizations, is aiming at $3,000 and $1,100 from last year will be absorbed.

Anyone wishing to help may call Wendel Ratcliffe at 746-4237, Mrs. Martha Brewer at 746-3547, Dan Johnson at 746-3376, or Jack Smythe at 748-9624.

Confidence Vote

Socreds Isolated In Test

By DAVE McINTOSH

OTTAWA (CP)—The minority Progressive Conservative government won its first crucial vote in the Commons Tuesday night when a Social Credit motion of non-confidence was defeated 233 to 30.

Only the Social Credit group supported the motion, which would have overthrown the government if it had carried. It was worded in such a way, however, that neither the Liberals nor New Democrats could have backed it.

In a rare display of interest, every MP was in his seat for the voting. The 115 Conservatives got support from 100 Liberals and 18 NDP members in opposing the motion.

MAKES APPEAL

Earlier Tuesday in the throne speech debate, Prime Minister Diefenbaker made an appeal for defeat of a Liberal non-confidence motion due to be voted on Thursday night.

Robert Thompson, Social Credit leader, indicated such support will be supplied by his party. He spoke while moving his party's version of non-confidence, which was greeted by laughter from Conservatives, Liberals and the NDP.

THE MOTION

"We respectfully affirm to Your Excellency that Your Excellency's advisers, having failed to pursue economic and financial policies based on Social Credit principles designed to balance the economy and relieve the burden of public debt and public debt charges, thus assuring Canadians a standard of life compatible with this nation's capacity to produce, do not possess the confidence of this House."

NO NATIONAL CRISIS

Mr. Thompson said his group is determined to follow "the role of statesmanship" rather than bring on a "national crisis."

Mr. Diefenbaker earlier asserted that the economy was on the "up and up" during the election campaign and is still "on the upsurge."

SLANGING MATCH

In a three-hour and 15-minute speech punctuated by a slanging match with Mr. Pearson, he denied the Liberal chieftain's charge that the government deceitfully concealed the foreign exchange crisis from the Canadian public during the campaign leading to the June 18 election.

DEFENDS STAND

The government's action of June 24 was "not abnormal." It had done "legally in 1962 what they (the Liberals) did illegally in 1947."

Mr. Diefenbaker said intensification of the drain on Canada's foreign exchange fund started last June 15.

Podres Vs. Marichal

LOS ANGELES — The entire National League baseball pennant fight, which started 163 games ago last April, has dwindled to a sudden-death contest in Dodgers Park here this afternoon. Winner gets to play New York Yankees in the World Series that starts Thursday.

Los Angeles Dodgers tied their playoff series with San Francisco Giants in an 8-7 thriller yesterday that lasted a record four hours, 18 minutes. (See Page 8.)

Dodger southpaw Johnny Podres (15-13) has been picked to oppose northpaw Juan Marichal (18-11) today.

Schirra Ready

Europe May Watch U.S. Space Attempt

CAPE CANAVERAL, Fla. (AP) — Astronaut Walter M. Schirra Jr. entered the final phases of preparation for a six-orbit journey around the earth Tuesday, and there was a possibility that much of Europe might witness the launching on television.

Improving weather conditions in the Atlantic and Pacific areas where the Mercury capsule might come down increased the chances that the spacecraft might be fired into orbit some time after 5 a.m. PDT today.

* * *

If the launching occurs between 5:45 and 6:15 a.m., the Telstar communications satellite will be within range so that live coverage of the liftoff could be sent almost instantaneously to TV viewers in 17 countries of the Eurovision network in Europe.

The National Aeronautics and Space Administration said conferences are also in progress in Paris leading to possible hookup with the nine Soviet bloc countries of Europe's Intervision network.

* * *

The plan calls for an eight-minute Telstar transmission to Europe. If the launch comes during that period, NASA hopes to be able to show Europe the last two to four minutes of pre-launch activity and the four-minute climb until the launching rocket is out of sight.

But NASA emphasized that there would be no juggling of launch times to fit into the Telstar schedule.

* * *

The space agency said the astronaut, his backup pilot, Leroy Gordon Cooper, his spacecraft and his Atlas rocket all appear to be in good condition for flight, and have completed the first part of a split countdown without a hitch.

The major concern has been the approach of tropical storm Daisy toward the areas 375 miles south of Bermuda where Schirra would land if his flight ended after two orbits. However, the storm was moving so slowly that it may not reach the area in time to give trouble.

Russia Asked To Avoid High Blasts

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States formally notified the Soviet Union Tuesday of the impending rocket flight of astronaut Walter M. Schirra and indicated hope that the Russians will avoid high-altitude nuclear explosions which might hamper the operation.

The U.S. action was similar to one the Soviet government took in mid-August when two Russian spacemen were orbited and Moscow notified Washington with a suggestion that the U.S. be careful about where it fired its nuclear test shots while the men were up.

Know This Week

Smallpox Shots For All?

By TERRY HAMMOND

Vancouver Island and lower mainland residents will know before the end of the week whether or not they will have to be vaccinated against smallpox.

Deputy health minister Dr. J. A. Taylor said last night a telephone call is expected "within a very few days" from Ottawa, which will advise whether or not a 25-year-old Thailand student at the University of British Columbia has the disease.

ON SAME PLANE

Already vaccinated in the Victoria area are five people who were in contact with a man who travelled to B.C. on the same plane with the student early last month.

Health officials yesterday opened a smallpox immunization clinic on the UBC campus following a roundup of students who had been in contact with student Kaneung Watanachai.

OTTAWA DIAGNOSE

If federal virologists at Ottawa diagnose the student as a smallpox victim from blood samples flown to the east, Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island residents should be vaccinated, said Dr. Taylor.

Dr. Taylor said the Island would have to be included because of large-scale travel between here and Vancouver and more particularly because of the number of UBC students who come over on weekends.

ONLY MILD CASE

Although the student might only have a mild case of smallpox, because of having been immunized before leaving Thailand, he could still pass it on to others who have not been vaccinated or whose immunization has worn off.

An emergency call for more smallpox vaccine was issued by the B.C. health department yesterday, and Connaught Laboratories in Toronto is expected to come up with enough to immunize 50,000 to 60,000 people.

WERE NOT SURE

Health authorities were not sure where they would get enough additional vaccine to immunize 500,000 people if the need arises, but Dr. Taylor thought manufacturers could pool stocks and probably meet the requirement.

Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said the possible smallpox contact who came here left last Sunday bound for London, U.K. health authorities have been alerted to intercept him.

NAME WITHHELD

Dr. Whitbread said he couldn't divulge the man's name and felt it was not necessary to do so in order to protect other possible contacts.

The man stayed in North Saanich, and Dr. Whitbread believes the five people immunized represent all he was in contact with.

He and all other passengers of the CPA plane which brought the Thailand student to Victoria were already under surveillance.

First Test Of Blood Negative

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first of three tests on a blood sample of a University of British Columbia student showed no sign of smallpox.

But Dr. J. L. Gaylon, Vancouver medical health officer, said Tuesday night two more tests are needed before it can be said definitely that Kaneung Watanachai is not suffering from the disease.

* * *

5,000 Get Shots

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia medical authorities vaccinated 4,000 students and faculty and staff members in the space of four hours Tuesday and appeared to have the smallpox scare at the university well under control.

NEARLY 5,000

Tuesday's mass immunization, carried out on a production-line basis by the university's free health service, brought to nearly 5,000 the number vaccinated since a suspected smallpox case was discovered Monday. The university's total enrolment is 13,500.

IN ISOLATION

Kaneung Watanachai, 25, a Colombo Plan student from Bangkok, is in isolation at Vancouver General Hospital with an unidentified skin infection. Final results of tests on his condition are expected to be known this week.

Students lined up five deep in the corridors of the university's Westbrook building Tuesday to receive their vaccinations.

FAIRLY CERTAIN

The university said it is now fairly certain everyone who had been in contact with Watanachai has been vaccinated. However, the university health service was prepared to continue the program today for any who knew they had been contacts.

FAST ACTION

A university spokesman said the fact the university's free health service for its students is the largest and most extensive in the Commonwealth made it possible to take fast action after the suspected case was discovered.

Camping in Hope Park

Sons Register 100 Children As School Bursts at Seams

HOPE (CP) — The number of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors camped in a municipal park here Tuesday swelled to 1,200, and sect spokesmen said the total was expected to go as high as 1,600. (See Pages 5, 10.)

About 100 children from the camp were registered in Coquihalla Elementary School here.

School board chairman George Brown said faciljties already were overtaxed and the school would have to go on shifts.

Mrs. Fanny Storgoff, a spokesman for the Doukhobors, said they are determined to continue to Agassiz.

90-Day Holiday Won by Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — After June, 1964, about 200 of the 400 workers at American Can Co. and Continental Can Co. plants here will be entitled to three months vacation every five years.

The United Steelworkers of America said Tuesday the clause is a major breakthrough. It applies only to employees who have been with the companies for 15 years or more.

It is contained in a contract negotiated on a North American basis.

British Trains Halted

LONDON (Reuters) — Rail traffic across Britain ground to a halt shortly after midnight Tuesday night as the country's railroad workers went out on a 24-hour strike.

CAMP BY DESKS

London businessmen and office workers camped beside their desks overnight after the railroad union leaders decided to go ahead with the strike following the collapse of last-chance peace talks called to avert the strike.

Offices, canteens and board rooms all became bedrooms as essential staff brought out mattresses and blankets.

HOTELS JAMMED

Hotels were jammed as the strike hit London's 1,250,000 commuters.

Many plan to switch to cars, but roads leading into the capital from the suburbs are barely adequate to handle the normal commuter travel.

Revenge Behind Slaying?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sidney Kovish, 28, longshoreman and sometime cowboy, was fatally wounded Tuesday night when shot in the chest at close range by a .303-calibre rifle held by an apparently intoxicated assailant.

Police, who later arrested a suspect in the shooting, had scoured the downtown area looking for a well-dressed man who witnesses said fired after saying to Kovish: "I told you I'd get you."

GRAIN DOCK JOB

Kovish, a bachelor who took two months off each summer to ride in rodeos in Canada and the U.S., was walking to his car after finishing work at a grain dock when the man stepped out of a late-model luxury car and went over to Kovish.

He fired two shots. The second shattered Kovish's hand when he tried to protect himself.

'Reds First in Nuclear Race'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. Edward Teller, the nuclear physicist, said Tuesday recent U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific have "not been quite satisfactory" and added:

"It is my guess, and it is only a guess, that the Russians are ahead of us in the nuclear race today."

Teller based his "guess" upon Russia's past record of progress in nuclear development and upon results of the recent U.S. tests.

The reason, he said, was that during the U.S. moratorium on testing, "we were not allowed to make thorough preparations for the eventuality that we would have to resume testing."

As a result, progress has been "less than it could have been."

However, he said the tests have shown that the weight of nuclear payloads may be reduced. The tests have afforded "additional assurance" that if the U.S. was attacked, it would have the ability to strike back, Teller said.

He said the tests were further valuable in experimenting with use of nuclear weapons as an aerial defence.

* * *

U.S. Ends Test Break

HONOLULU (AP) — The U.S. resumed nuclear testing in the Pacific Tuesday after a two-month recess.

The device packed power equivalent to between 20,000 and 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Political Prisoner —Walker

SPRINGIELD, Mo. (UPI)—Former army general Edwin Walker, charging he is being held as a "political prisoner," was ordered Tuesday to undergo psychiatric examination at the U.S. hospital for federal prisoners.

Attorneys for Walker, arrested on Monday for his part in the University of Mississippi integration crisis, have told the former general to give prison officials and doctors only name, rank and serial number.

Time for Purge

Barnett Granted 10-Day Reprieve

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett Tuesday won a 10-day reprieve from federal punishment for his vain opposition to Negro James H. Meredith's enrolment at the University of Mississippi. The justice department suggested the delay. (See Page 3.)

Instead of sending Barnett to prison or fining him on the spot, a federal appeals court gave him a form of probation until Oct. 12—apparently a test of his willingness to accept fully Meredith's integration into previously all-white student ranks.

Twice last week, Barnett personally blocked Meredith's admission to the University. But in the face of federal troop intervention, the governor made

JAMES MEREDITH

By REIMAN MORIN

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—James H. Meredith, sitting on an iron cot in a bare dormitory room, said Tuesday he considers his enrolment in the University of Mississippi to be "more for America than it is for me."

Meredith is the first Negro knowingly admitted as a student in the university's 114-year history.

* * *

In an interview, he showed no visible signs of nervousness or apprehension after the explosive riot that swept the university campus after his arrival Sunday night.

Meredith said quietly:

"I hope now the situation gets back to normal as soon as possible so that the students can continue their studies normally. That's what I want more than anything else now."

* * *

This was his second day to attend classes. He was escorted by federal Marshal James McShane to an hour's class in American colonial history. His second class was in political science.

He took a seat toward the back of the room. Two other male students sat a little farther back. None of the seats directly adjoining his was occupied.

A crowd, estimated by McShane at about 40, had gathered in front of the building when Meredith emerged.

* * *

However, he said in the interview that in the classes a number of students have greeted him, saying "hello" or "good morning."

He added:

"I haven't seen any students in class who appeared to be unfriendly."

After his first day in classes Monday, McShane said there had been no reaction from white classmates.

* * *

But a reliable campus source said that a co-ed burst into tears and sprinted from the room when Meredith entered.

"I can't stand it any more. This is enough and I am leaving," she shouted as she fled.

Meredith indicated emphatically Tuesday that he intends to remain in the university until he has his degree.

WASHINGTON (AP) — The United States formally notified the Soviet Union Tuesday of the impending rocket flight of astronaut Walter M. Schirra and indicated hope that the Russians will avoid high-altitude nuclear explosions which might hamper the operation.

The U.S. action was similar to one the Soviet government took in mid-August when two Russian spacemen were orbited and Moscow notified Washington with a suggestion that the U.S. be careful about where it fired its nuclear test shots while the men were up.

SHOTS FOR ALL?

By TERRY HAMMOND

Vancouver Island and lower mainland residents will know before the end of the week whether or not they will have to be vaccinated against smallpox.

Deputy health minister Dr. J. A. Taylor said last night a telephone call is expected "within a very few days" from Ottawa, which will advise whether or not a 25-year-old Thailand student at the University of British Columbia has the disease.

ON SAME PLANE

Already vaccinated in the Victoria area are five people who were in contact with a man who travelled to B.C. on the same plane with the student early last month.

Health officials yesterday opened a smallpox immunization clinic on the UBC campus following a roundup of students who had been in contact with student Kaneung Watanachai.

OTTAWA DIAGNOSE

If federal virologists at Ottawa diagnose the student as a smallpox victim from blood samples flown to the east, Lower Mainland and Vancouver Island residents should be vaccinated, said Dr. Taylor.

Dr. Taylor said the Island would have to be included because of large-scale travel between here and Vancouver and more particularly because of the number of UBC students who come over on weekends.

ONLY MILD CASE

Although the student might only have a mild case of smallpox, because of having been immunized before leaving Thailand, he could still pass it on to others who have not been vaccinated or whose immunization has worn off.

An emergency call for more smallpox vaccine was issued by the B.C. health department yesterday, and Connaught Laboratories in Toronto is expected to come up with enough to immunize 50,000 to 60,000 people.

WERE NOT SURE

Health authorities were not sure where they would get enough additional vaccine to immunize 500,000 people if the need arises, but Dr. Taylor thought manufacturers could pool stocks and probably meet the requirement.

Greater Victoria medical health officer Dr. J. L. M. Whitbread said the possible smallpox contact who came here left last Sunday bound for London, U.K. health authorities have been alerted to intercept him.

NAME WITHHELD

Dr. Whitbread said he couldn't divulge the man's name and felt it was not necessary to do so in order to protect other possible contacts.

The man stayed in North Saanich, and Dr. Whitbread believes the five people immunized represent all he was in contact with.

He and all other passengers of the CPA plane which brought the Thailand student to Victoria were already under surveillance.

First Test Of Blood Negative

VANCOUVER (CP) — The first of three tests on a blood sample of a University of British Columbia student showed no sign of smallpox.

But Dr. J. L. Gayton, Vancouver medical health officer, said Tuesday night two more tests are needed before it can be said definitely that Kaneung Watanachai is not suffering from the disease.

5,000 Get Shots

VANCOUVER (CP) — University of British Columbia medical authorities vaccinated 4,000 students and faculty and staff members in the space of four hours Tuesday and appeared to have the smallpox scare at the university well under control.

NEARLY 5,000

Tuesday's mass immunization, carried out on a production-line basis by the university's free health service, brought to nearly 5,000 the number vaccinated since a suspected smallpox case was discovered Monday. The university's total enrolment is 13,500.

IN ISOLATION

Kaneung Watanachai, 25, a Colombo Plan student from Bangkok, is in isolation at Vancouver General Hospital with an unidentified skin infection. Final results of tests on his condition are expected to be known this week.

Students lined up five deep in the corridors of the university's Westbrook building Tuesday to receive their vaccinations.

FAIRLY CERTAIN

The university said it is now fairly certain everyone who had been in contact with Watanachai has been vaccinated. However, the university health service was prepared to continue the program today for any who knew they had been contacts.

FAST ACTION

A university spokesman said the fact the university's free health service for its students is the largest and most extensive in the Commonwealth made it possible to take fast action after the suspected case was discovered.

Camping in Hope Park

Scns Register 100 Children As School Bursts at Seams

HOPE (CP) — The number of Sons of Freedom Doukhobors camped in a municipal park here Tuesday swelled to 1,200, and sect spokesmen said the total was expected to go as high as 1,600. (See Pages 5, 10.)

About 100 children from the camp were registered in Coquihalla Elementary School here.

School board chairman George Brown said facilities already were overtaxed and the school would have to go on shifts.

Mrs. Fanny Storgoff, a spokesman for the Doukhobors, said they are determined to continue to Agassiz.

90-Day Holiday Won by Union

VANCOUVER (CP) — After June, 1964, about 200 of the 400 workers at American Can Co. and Continental Can Co. plants here will be entitled to three months vacation every five years.

The United Steelworkers of America said Tuesday the clause is a major breakthrough. It applies only to employees who have been with the companies for 15 years or more.

It is contained in a contract negotiated on a North American basis.

British Trains Halted

LONDON (Reuters) — Rail traffic across Britain ground to a halt shortly after midnight Tuesday night as the country's railroad workers went out on a 24-hour strike.

CAMP BY DESKS

London businessmen and office workers camped beside their desks overnight after the railroad union leaders decided to go ahead with the strike following the collapse of last-chance peace talks called to avert the strike.

Offices, canteens and board rooms all became bedrooms as essential staff brought out mattresses and blankets.

HOTELS JAMMED

Hotels were jammed as the strike hit London's 1,250,000 commuters.

Many plan to switch to cars, but roads leading into the capital from the suburbs are barely adequate to handle the normal commuter travel.

Revenge Behind Slaying?

VANCOUVER (CP)—Sidney Kovish, 28, longshoreman and sometime cowboy, was fatally wounded Tuesday night when shot in the chest at close range by a .303-calibre rifle held by an apparently intoxicated assailant.

Police, who later arrested a suspect in the shooting, had scoured the downtown area looking for a well-dressed man who witnesses said fired after saying to Kovish: "I told you I'd get you."

GRAIN DOCK JOB

Kovish, a bachelor who took two months off each summer to ride in rodeos in Canada and the U.S., was walking to his car after finishing work at a grain dock when the man stepped out of a late-model luxury car and went over to Kovish.

He fired two shots. The second shattered Kovish's hand when he tried to protect himself.

'Reds First in Nuclear Race'

SAN FRANCISCO (UPI)—Dr. Edward Teller, the nuclear physicist, said Tuesday recent U.S. nuclear tests in the Pacific have "not been quite satisfactory" and added:

"It is my guess, and it is only a guess, that the Russians are ahead of us in the nuclear race today."

Teller based his "guess" upon Russia's past record of progress in nuclear development and upon results of the recent U.S. tests.

The reason, he said, was that during the U.S. moratorium on testing, "we were not allowed to make thorough preparations for the eventuality that we would have to resume testing."

As a result, progress has been "less than it could have been."

However, he said the tests have shown that the weight of nuclear payloads may be reduced. The tests have afforded "additional assurance" that if the U.S. was attacked, it would have the ability to strike back, Teller said.

He said the tests were further valuable in experimenting with use of nuclear weapons as an aerial defence.

U.S. Ends Test Break

HONOLULU (AP) — The U.S. resumed nuclear testing in the Pacific Tuesday after a two-month recess.

The device packed power equivalent to between 20,000 and 1,000,000 tons of TNT.

Political Prisoner —Walker

SPRINGIELD, Mo. (UPI)—Former army general Edwin Walker, charging he is being held as a "political prisoner," was ordered Tuesday to undergo psychiatric examination at the U.S. hospital for federal prisoners.

Attorneys for Walker, arrested on Monday for his part in the University of Mississippi integration crisis, have told the former general to give prison officials and doctors only name, rank and serial number.

Time for Purge

Barnett Granted 10-Day Reprieve

NEW ORLEANS (AP)—Mississippi Governor Ross Barnett Tuesday won a 10-day reprieve from federal punishment for his vain opposition to Negro James H. Meredith's enrolment at the University of Mississippi. The justice department suggested the delay. (See Page 3.)

Instead of sending Barnett to prison or fining him on the spot, a federal appeals court gave him a form of probation until Oct. 12—apparently a test of his willingness to accept fully Meredith's integration into previously all-white student ranks.

Twice last week, Barnett personally blocked Meredith's admission to the University. But in the face of federal troop intervention, the governor made

JAMES MEREDITH

By RELMAN MORIN

OXFORD, Miss. (AP)—James H. Meredith, sitting on an iron cot in a bare dormitory room, said Tuesday he considers his enrolment in the University of Mississippi to be "more for America than it is for me."

Meredith is the first Negro knowingly admitted as a student in the university's 114-year history.

In an interview, he showed no visible signs of nervousness or apprehension after the explosive riot that swept the university campus after his arrival Sunday night.

Meredith said quietly:

"I hope now the situation gets back to normal as soon as possible so that the students can continue their studies normally. That's what I want more than anything else now."

This was his second day to attend classes. He was escorted by federal Marshal James McShane to an hour's class in American colonial history. His second class was in political science.

He took a seat toward the back of the room. Two other male students sat a little farther back. None of the seats directly adjoining his was occupied

A crowd, estimated by McShane at about 40, had gathered in front of the building when Meredith emerged.

However, he said in the interview that in the classes a number of students have greeted him, saying "hello" or "good morning."

He added:

"I haven't seen any students in class who appeared to be unfriendly."

After his first day in classes Monday, McShane said there had been no reaction from white classmates.

But a reliable campus source said that a co-ed burst into tears and sprinted from the room when Meredith entered.

"I can't stand it any more. This is enough and I am leaving," she shouted as she fled.

Meredith indicated emphatically Tuesday that he intends to remain in the university until he has his degree.
